PAPPAS SAVED

SLAYER WHOSE EXECUTION IS STAYED

PAUL PAPPAS
Photographed by a Boston American cameraman on his way from the death house at Charlestown to appear in Supreme Court.

Paul Pappas will not die in the electric chair tonight. Judge Braley in the Supreme Court today decided to let the full bench of the court decide the merits of a petition for a writ of error filed today by Pappas' counsel. This means a new chance for Pappas' life, and at any rate a delay in his execution.

After the decision by Judge Braley Attorney-General Jay Benton started for the State House to ask Governor Cox to order a stay of execution. It was announced that the full bench of the Supreme Court will not hear the Pappas case until May 1.

"I am innocent, but I am prepared to die," Paul Pappas told Warden Hendry at Charlestown prison shortly after noon today.

He was eating his luncheon half an hour later when the warden rushed in.

"Get ready, Paul," Hendry said.

"To die?" asked Pappas.

"No. You've got to go to court at once."

Pappas was handcuffed to a prison officer and taken to the Supreme Court room at Pemberton square where his Attorney, John W. Schenck and Attorney-General Benton argued Schenck's petition for a writ of error.

Schenck's writ is based on alleged illegality of the sentence of death imposed on Pappas by Judge Keating.

Meanwhile the Commonwealth proceeded in its grisly business of preparing to kill Pappas in due process of law, for the murder of Mrs. Alice Arsenault.

Preparations went on despite the last-minute efforts of John W. Schenck, attorney for Pappas, who announced he would file the plea in Supreme Court attacking the legality of the death sentence imposed by Judge Keating.

The executioner has arrived. He

SLAIN GIRL GOT DEATH THREAT

New York, March 23 (By International News Service).—A new sign post along the trail of love thefts followed by Dorothy Keenan King on the way to her death by chloroform today was counted by police as probable aid in a solution of the mystery murder.

It was a threatening letter from a woman, former staunch friend of the slain model in the lean days before wealthy admirers lavished gifts and money on her.

It was received three days before the model was murdered, and so great was the terror it struck into her heart that she became hysterical and was ill for half a day. At that time she is believed to have written a will duplicating the one which foreshadowed her death through "something unforeseen."

Officers sifted the new message, which followed other clews to jealous enemies of the girl, threatened vengeance on the model for betrayal of friendship and capture of the writer's sweetheart.

The dignified "Mr. Marshall" of Boston apparently left the girl's apartment in great haste when he departed a few hours before her body was found.

Searchers found he left behind his umbrella in the white stone stand in the vestibule and from this tumbled a large wad of absorbent cotton similar to that used to administer chloroform to the Broadway butterfly.

Then, too, "mysterious Mr. Marshall" neglected to don his white kid gloves. They were found under a plush sofa in the sitting room. They nestled alongside of a suit of pajamas of yellow Chinese silk and a woman's hand bag. A brown and yellow tortoise shell comb in a leath-

STUDENTS FLAYED BY JUDGE

Frederick H. South, World War veteran and vocational student, who falsely registered with sixteen-year-old Sylvia Henderson of Cambridge last Sunday night at Putnam's Hotel, Back Bay, where the girl later attempted suicide by poison, was given a blistering lecture and a $25 fine by Judge Palmer in Roxbury court today.

This was the maximum penalty the court could impose for violation of the true name law.

Judge Palmer denounced some phases of student life saying: "We are familiar with the way modern students drink and play cards and pick up these young women and lead these kinds of loose lives."

South took the girl to Putnam's Hotel on Huntington avenue and registered as "Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Harrison, Portland."

South told the court today he was not in the room with the girl more than two minutes and that he went directly back to his apartment.

His attorney, John J. O'Connor, argued that South merely did not wish the girl to walk around all night. She had threatened suicide and South had begged her: "For God's sake, don't do that."

Five friends of South, some of them sharing the Westland avenue apartment with him, were in court as evidence of the clean appearing student type of youth with whom South associated.

Judge Palmer said he could not understand why South had to hire a hotel room for Sylvia and subject her to suspicion by false registration. The court went on:

"Girls have been taken into rooms

HUGE PLOT BARED IN GERMANY

Berlin, March 23.—General Ludendorff, next to Hindenburg, the biggest German figure in the World War, and Herr Hitler, leader of the "Nationalists Socialists" (German Fascisti), negotiated with Lieutenant Rossbach and reactionary leaders of the German People's Party to recruit volunteers to fight the French in the Ruhr, it was openly charged in the Prussian Landtag today by Herr Severing, Prussian Minister of Interior, a Socialist.

London, March 23 (By the Associated Press).—The Prussian Minister of the Interior, Herr Severing, told the Diet today, according to a Central News dispatch from Berlin, that Lieutenant Rossbach, recently arrested in Berlin, had planned a revolution which

AID CALLED IN REVERE BLAZE

The entire fire equipment of Revere, and two engines from Chelsea, were called to save the Belvidere block in Orr square, Revere, from destruction by fire.

A brick fire wall which divided the block in two saved half of the block. Damage is estimated at $25,000.

The fire started in the store of A. Karris, on the ground floor of the three-story block of buildings, which is occupied by about twenty-five families. It was noticed by James Mc Kinght, Superintendant of Streets of Revere, who turned in the alarm.

Frank Chase and Arthur Sullivan, tenants of the building, raced through the block rousing sleeping persons, and within a few moments

N. E. ROADS LIFT LUMBER EMBARGO

The embargo on lumber entering the city, will be lifted by the Boston & Maine and New Haven railroads, said Mayor Curley today. The appeal was made to the railroads by representatives of the Massachusetts Wholesale Lumber Association and the Northeastern Retail Lumbermen's Association. With the building situation at its height this news is of a most cheerful nature to those interested.

Again the American Leads; 3 Exclusive Beats Yesterday

In this morning's papers you will find excellent accounts of the following:

1.—The denial by Judge Keating of the motion for a new trial for Paul Pappas.

2.—The ghost that wrecked the Fales-Hartleigh romance.

3.—The new development in the Nathaniel Thayer Loring domestic imbroglio.

All very interesting items. But you could have read them YESTERDAY in the Boston American, which printed them FIRST. Incidentally, yesterday's Loring story was accompanied by pictures—the only ones printed. And incidentally, the Boston American is the only newspaper in this city which printed a complete account of the fight made by counsel to save the life of Paul Pappas.

If you want news without whiskers, you have to buy the American.

CONSCIENCE PRICKS; THIEF CONFESSES

New York, March 23.—Tortured by his conscience until he could neither eat nor sleep, George Smith, an Interborough Rapid Transit Company timekeeper, knocked at the gate of Tombs Prison today and after being admitted confessed that he had been padding the Interborough payrolls. His "rakeoff" totalled between $300 and $400, he said. He was charged with petit larceny.

20,000 MORE FRENCH TROOPS FOR RUHR

Paris, March 23 (By the Associated Press).—The French troops in the Ruhr will be reinforced by 20,000 men within a few days, War Minister Maginot announced today in the Chamber of Deputies.

Thousands of Italians of Providence and other cities in Rhode Island had invested their life savings with the concern.

SLAYER PAPPAS GIVES UP HOPE; WRITES TO WIFE

HIS LAWYER MAKES LAST APPEAL TO COURT

came from New York State and his name is not made known. The executioner is always protected by anonymity. He spent the early forenoon testing the mechanism of the electric chair, upon which Paul Pappas is destined to take a seat at two minutes after midnight today.

Pappas has given up all hope and has resigned himself to die.

Everything that can be done to make his last hours pleasant is being done. The personnel of the prison are his servants. The warden is his valet.

Warden William Hendry has supplied Pappas with a new suit of underwear and a new pair of trousers, so that Pappas may go to his death immaculately attired. He visited Pappas in the morning. The conversation between the two men did not seem to be the talk of a man who is forced to an unpleasant duty with another who is facing death.

GREETS THE WARDEN.

"Good morning, Warden."

"Good morning, Paul."

"It's a real Spring day, isn't it?"

"A beautiful day."

But even as Hendry said this heavy clouds overcast the sun. It seemed symbolic to Pappas, for he sighed heavily and said:

"Now it is cloudy. Mr. Schenck is still trying?"

"Mr. Schenck is doing everything he can to get a stay of execution."

"It is useless," said Pappas. "I do not feel any hope. I am prepared to die. I don't think there is a chance. But it is good of him to try. I will die an innocent man, warden."

This time the warden sighed.

"Is there anything I can do for you, Paul?" he asked.

A shrug.

"I am hungry."

"What would you like to eat? Anything you wish, remember. I am at your service."

The man who knew he would die within twelve hours reflected.

ORDERS HIS LAST MEAL.

"I would like oysters—an oyster stew, with crackers. Bread and coffee."

"All right, Paul."

"And a piece of apple pie. Can I have that too?"

"Of course."

Warden Hendry departed to personally supervise Pappas' last luncheon.

The brother of Pappas called, accompanied by Paul's uncle. They talked together in Greek. They left, promising to come back later in the afternoon.

Pappas will be spared an ordeal. It is customary to give condemned prisoners a haircut on the day of their execution. This is done because the hair sometimes interferes with the electric current. Pappas' head is close-cropped and he will not need the services of a barber.

There will be less than a dozen witnesses to the execution. These include Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin of the prison staff; Medical Examiner [illegible] Magrath; Dr. John Williams of the Governor's staff; Warden Hendry; Rev. William Bradley Whitney, the prison chaplain; Rev. Joachim Alexopoulos, priest of the Greek Orthodox Church in Boston, and a newspaper man who will represent the press.

PAPPAS READS IN CELL.

After his luncheon the warden paid a second visit to Pappas. He found him absorbed in an illustrated magazine. Pappas thanked Hendry for his kindnesses and acts of thoughtfulness during the entire period he has been a tenant of the death house.

At 11:39 p. m., Pappas will be notified to prepare for his death. He will be asked at that time whether he has a statement or confession to make. He will then be escorted to the death chamber.

There will be a final test of the mechanism. The executioner will take his place behind the screen that will conceal Pappas from his view. Pappas will be strapped to the chair. A plate will cover his head and eyes. There will come a signal. The executioner will pull a switch.

U. S. TELLS ROADS TO PAY UP

Washington, March 23.—An order was issued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring all railroads to report by May 1 as to their earnings during the year 1922 and to pay over to the government under the transportation act one-half of the amount by which such earnings exceeded a six per cent. return on the value of the investment.

So far practically no payments have been made under the law requiring the return of excess earnings.

PREACHER WHO FLED WINS LAW SUIT

Rev. Edwin W. Gay, former marine artist, preacher and "model husband," who departed hastily from Winthrop sometime ago when Lottie Proctor, former actress, brought a $50,000 breach of promise suit against him, won a legal battle in the Superior Court today.

Today's victory, however, was not on the love suit. Gay when he departed from Winthrop left Miss Proctor a house which he owned. She, he charged, leased it to Alfred T. Darby, and Gay brought suit against Darby and Lottie to recover the house. Judge Weed directed the jury to return a verdict in favor of Miss Proctor, but the jury decided against Darby and declared Gay entitled to his house.

Winthrop was shocked last August when the suit filed by Miss Proctor revealed that the former preacher had been leading a double life. It was disclosed that Gay had been keeping his wife and grown-up daughters in a house within a few blocks from the house where he kept the Proctor woman.

Mrs. Proctor accused Gay of being the father of her eight-year-old daughter, and declared she was in ignorance of the wife of Gay within a few blocks of her home. Gay departed hastily when the suit was filed. He is now said to be in Montgomery, Alabama.

was set to break out by March 31, at the latest.

A combination of the German peoples and Liberal parties and the Bavarian Socialists, he added, had only been prevented by yesterday's arrests.

Herr Severing denied the Rossbach organization was merely a sporting fraternity, as claimed. Its members, he said, were military men—trained soldiers who had fought in the war. They were partially equipped and frequently exercised and drilled. The minister, according to the despatch mentioned General Ludendorff as one of those on whom grave suspicion rested.

A telegram from Breslau announces a number of arrests were made there today in connection with the alleged Rossbach plot.

Berlin, March 23 (By the Associated Press).—The investigation by the Prussian Minister of the Interior into the activities of reactionary organizations is reported to have led to the discovery of a plot, modeled on the famous Kapp Putsch, to overthrow the government.

It is officially stated the investigators in Berlin, Knasel, Hanover, Magdeburg and other towns revealed material of a very compromising character for the anti-Semetic Freiheit Party.

According to the Vossische Zeitung, the conspirators' plan included overthrowing the government of the Reich and Prussia, assassination of the Socialist Ministers, dissolution of the Reichstag, proclamation that the Weimar Constitution was null and void, and substitution of the so-called "National Dictatorship" with anti-Semetic and National Socialist leaders.

Mice in Russia
Marriage in Manila
Lord Robert in America
Broadbeard Bites Chains

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Hearst Co.

SOUTH RUSSIA is fighting, not against friends of czardom or Turks, but against the field mice. Millions of acres have been ruined by these creatures, as many as 70,000 mouse burrows being found within three acres.

Anti-mouse conventions are held, and the peasants whose crops are destroyed, because of their superstition, oppose any attack on the mice. They say the field mice are God's creatures; a great supply of them means good crops.

Superstition is the worst enemy of human beings. It causes ignorant masses in India to fight against attempts to end the plague. It has caused millions of ignorant mothers to forbid ridding their children of vermin, because "vermin are a sign of health." They could not be persuaded that the vermin's bite alone spreads the deadly typhus.

TROTZKY, HEAD of the Russian army, should solve the mouse problem by sending his aviators, flying slow, to sweep the millions of infested acres with some efficient heavy poison gas that would sink into the mouse burrows. Flying machines and gas combined are destined eventually to wipe out many plagues, including, perhaps, the worst of disease breeding microbes and the disease carrying mosquitoes and flies.

THE FILIPINOS will change their marriage laws as follows:

"No Filipino girl may marry before she is twelve years old; no boy may marry before he is fourteen."

In tropical countries human beings mature early. But do you think the sons and daughters of children aged twelve and fourteen can be able to take care of their own country with Japan looking over the edge of the water at them?

This country will answer "No," especially if it turns out that there really are great quantities of coal and oil in the Philippines.

LORD ROBERT CECIL will travel up and down in our land, talking for the League of Nations. All will listen politely, nine out of ten will not understand what Cecil says. His English is not "American."

Everybody will be glad to hear him. Nothing is more pleasing than a cultivated English voice, even if you don't know what it is singing about.

CONCERNING LORD ROBERT, remember that it is perfectly natural for him to believe that Great Britain should have the greatest empire, the greatest influence and that this country should gratefully and hastily accept any English suggestion of co-operation or "league."

CECIL'S SPIRIT has lived on earth in the bodies of important people in England for many centuries. His ancestor, Lord Burleigh, was the Prime Minister and political boss of Queen Elizabeth. Lord Robert Cecil has been taught the motto, "England first and the rest nowhere."

It is a good motto for England. We ought to get a little of it for the United States.

Tells of $500,000 Gem Theft

MRS. IRENE SCHOELLKOPF

New York, March 23.—The first detailed story of the $500,000 jewel robbery last New Year's Day when Mrs. Irene Schoellkopf was stripped of her gems after a liquor party at the apartment of Frank R. Carman, was today the victim herself at the trial of Charles J. Hughes, alleged projector of the participants.

Hughes is on trial as an accessory in that he aided Matthew J. Biddulph, confessed member of the robber trio, to evade arrest.

Mrs. Schoellkopf said she lived in Buffalo and was in New York on a visit when invited to the party by Carman. She said there were seven others present.

On her way out she was forced into the apartment below at the point of a revolver, she testified. There she saw Biddulph. Biddulph was the only one she recognized.

The witness insisted Biddulph did not help the others in taking the jewels from her as she was lying on the bed. She positively stated she never saw Hughes before.

Biddulph testified that Hughes had refused to join the conspiracy, but had surveyed the Carman house with a view to discovering modes of escape.

He admitted the apartment under Carman's had been hired for the robbery.

The witness said the gang had watched Mrs. Shoellkopf and had knowledge she visited there. On one occasion, he said, Moran and Hughes had steamed open a letter addressed to Carman and found it contained a check for $350 signed by Mrs. Schoellkopf.

most of the people in the block were out in the street.

Miss Alice Karras, daughter of the owner of the store in which the fire started, ran to the street attired only in a nightgown.

Many others were forced to make their escape scantily clad. Fire Chief Arthur Kimball, who was testifying in court in an arson case, was informed of the fire and rushed to the scene.

It was impossible for any of the tenants to save their effects. The only one who made an effort to do this was the manager of the Revere Credit Company, which has an office in the block. He rushed in and removed books, accounts and other papers.

BEDROOM HAIRPINS MYSTERY TO MAURICE

London, March 23. — Maurice Mouvet, the internationally famous dancer, could throw no light on how hairpins got into his bedroom, he declared in his sworn affidavit filed in the divorce case of Tom Stephenson Furness against his wife, Elisabeth Furness, former New York actress. Maurice, who said he could not be present in person because he is fighting tuberculosis in Switzerland, denied that he had ever been guilty of misconduct with Mrs. Furness, as charged by her husband, who is the cousin of Lord Furness, head of the great Liverpool shipbuilding firm.

CULT HEAD DEFIED HER PROTESTS

Threatened to Banish Queen's Sweetheart From the Colony, Witness Declares

Grand Rapids, Mich, March 23. (By International News Company). —Federal Court was thrown into a furore today, when Mrs. Esther Hansel, one-time favorite of King Benjamin Purnell, charged that House of David leaders have attempted to poison "rebels," who left the colony and brought suit against Purnell.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 23 (By International News Service). — Members of the House of David are rallying today to protect the honor of "Queen" Mary Purnell, wife of "King" Benjamin, leader of the Israelites, following the linking of Mary's name with her husband's "right hand man," Francis Thorpe.

Benjamin himself accused Mary of affairs with Thorpe when she protested over conditions at "Shiloh," according to the testimony of Mrs. Esther H. Hansel, former private secretary to "King" Benamin, at the Hansel suit against the cult.

"Mary was downhearted and blue over Benamin's ways. She protested with him, told him he was running a disorderly house."

"And what did Benjamin say to that?" Mrs. Hansel was asked.

AWAITS HER DAY.

"He flew into a rage. He asked what right Mary had to protest his relations with girl inmates of Shiloh when the whole colony of Shiloh was talking about her intimacy with Francis Thorpe. He shouted at her, 'You don't trouble to hide your affection for Thorpe.'

"Another time Mary threatened to move all of the girls out of Shiloh. Benjamin again became enraged and told her that if she ever tried to take the girls away he would kick Thorpe out of the colony."

The color mounted into Mary's face as Mrs. Hansel poured out her charges. Then she slumped back into her chair, her face white, her eyes closed.

"My time is coming," she whispered. "Wait until I get on the witness stand. I feel like a lion suddenly freed from its cage."

DEFINES SEWAGE.

Mrs. Hansel told of years of intimacy with Purnell. She pictured him as a Jekyl and Mr. Hyde, posing as a spiritual leader of his followers, but revealing his true nature to the girls kept in bondage at Shiloh.

Mrs. Hansel testified that Lena Cline, picked by Benjamin for his "harem," was so badly misused that she went insane and subsequently was sent back to Germany by Benjamin.

She told of tunnels leading from Shiloh.

"It is not possible that these tunnels were for sewerage?" the court asked.

"Yes, your honor, they were used for sewage, the kind that crawls on hands and knees," came the reply.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Hansel admitted she "ought to be behind the bars" for her acts in behalf of the cult. She said she violated the law for Purnell, "believing it was the faith."

PERJURED HERSELF.

"I was his partner in every crooked and deceitful deal in the colony," she testified. "I perjured myself and lied. Benjamin and I both ought to be behind the bars."

Describing the hardships of members of the colony, the witness said:

"I never saw a cripple admitted to the House of David. The qualification for membership was money, a strong back and a weak mind, or else a good trade."

Members of the cult were given poor food, she said. The fare consisted of vegetable soup, containing cocoanut oil instead of fats, baked carrots or rutabagas, one slice of bread for each person, and berries that were unfit for the market. In the Winter the followers were given skimmed milk, she said.

MRS. RUTH FLAYED DOLORES

Babe's Wife Called Her "Dirty Little Sneak" Over Phone, Girl Asserts

Dolores Dixon, nineteen-year-old orphan girl, fell in love with Babe Ruth after their chance meeting, and the Home Run King paid her ardent court, she alleges. Deserted, later she sought to reach the king of batsmen by telephone, as was their custom of communication, but found it impossible to get him to answer the phone. So she wrote him a letter and delivered it personally to his hotel. This resulted, she says, in a long-awaited phone call. But it came not from Ruth, but his secretary. Now go on with the story:

By DOLORES DIXON.

Suburb of New York, March 23.—I was so stunned I hardly knew what to say to Mrs. Ruth when she asked me what that letter meant that I sent to Mr. Ruth.

"Why," I replied, "it means just what it says."

Then she said: "Why, Mr. Ruth said it couldn't be possible you were in that condition. He hasn't seen you in some time."

I told her it was so and he knew it was so. She said:

"Wait a minute—" and then she came back to the phone and told me Mr. Ruth was talking on another wire—and as soon as he finished that call he would ring me back.

LONG WAIT FOR CALL.

That was about 11 o'clock. Well, of course, I felt sick all over. And I began to recall the tales people had been bringing me—about his having gone back to his old girl. But inside there was something that kept me from letting down altogether. It was knowing that I was soon to speak to Babe himself. I was to hear his voice and be able to tell him everything and then everything was going to be all right.

Babe Ruth

I was afraid to leave the phone one minute for fear that just in that minute the call would come. But lunch hour came and went—the afternoon dragged by—and still no call.

FLAYED BY MRS. RUTH.

At last, about seven o'clock, the phone rang. But it was not Babe. It was Mrs. Ruth. I had said in the letter that I knew he wouldn't want Mrs. Ruth to find out about what had happened. The first thing she said was:

"Is this Doris?" I said yes. I had signed the letter "Your little golf girl—Dolores Dixon," as I usually signed all my letters to him.

She said: "This is Mrs. Ruth speaking. I'd like to know what you meant by that letter you sent my husband."

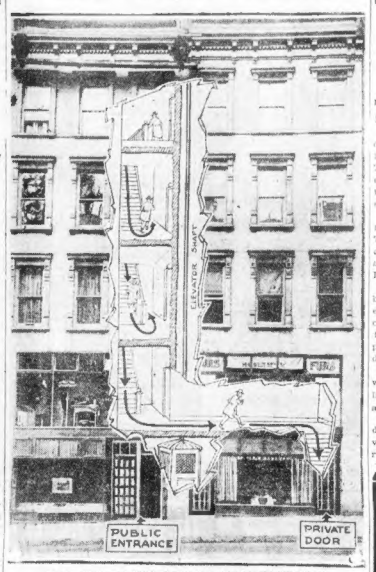

I told her I meant just what I said in the letter. Then she said: "Why, I know about you, you dirty little sneak. ——," and she called me a bad name. "If you start anything you will get in a whole lot of trouble."

HANGS UP RECEIVER.

She went on using bad language, but I hung up the receiver. I've

HOW MODEL'S SLAYER FLED FROM ROOMS

DOROTHY KEENAN'S APARTMENTS

Above is a photo-diagram of the apartments in West Fifty-seventh street, New York, where Miss Dorothy Keenan, or King, lived. The slain model occupied rooms on the top floor. There were two entrances to the building, one a private entrance which led to the second floor only, and which adjoined the entrance to the upper floors, which also could be reached through the entrance at No. 144 West Fifty-seventh, the usual entrance used. It is believed that the slayer of the girl entered by the public entrance, using the elevator. After committing the crime it is believed he descended the stairs and left the building by the private entrance.

FIND NEW CLEWS IN DEATH OF BROADWAY BUTTERFLY

er case was found in the bed along side of the girl's body.

All of the articles hidden beneath the sofa appeared to have been thrust there in great haste. Just why this was done or who did it is a puzzle to the police.

The apparent haste with which "Mr. Marshall" left the love nest has an important bearing on the mystery in the opinion of the investigators.

Detectives combing the apartment for clews to the killer found the dead girl's will, drawn up in January, 1923. This was on a table. A copy of the will, which like the original, was unsigned and unwitnessed, was picked up near the foot of her bed. Nearby was a violet handkerchief.

The will bears out statements of the model's mother that she was in great fear for her life. The contents have not been made public by the authorities.

TWO NEW WITNESSES.

Two more characters today were added to the rapidly increasing cast of the murder drama.

They were listed as "McBryne and his girl." They were asked to call on Police Inspector Coughlin to confirm reports that they had breakfasted with Alfred Guimares close friend of the slain model, in his room in a local hotel on the morning that Miss Keenan's chloroformed body was found in her West 57th street apartment.

According to the police, McBryne, a friend of Guimares, is the only person found so far who can testify that he was in the hotel between 2 a. m. and 8:35 a. m. on the day of the slaying. The murder is believed to have occurred after 3 a. m.

McBryne has told the police that three breakfasts were brought to Guimares' room. A waiter, however, has stated he carried only two trays.

WITHHOLDS NAME.

Even the demands that he make known the identity of "Mr. Marshall of Boston" are becoming more bitter and more insistent hourly, Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora continues to withhold the name of the man who gave the girl $1000 a week, and who is alleged to be a wealthy Boston manufacturer.

Unwinding the mystery of the identity of "Marshall," which is provoking public-spirited interest in Boston as well as in this city, and serving to show to what limits the clandestine admirer of the cloak model has gone to conceal himself in the entry of another anonymous man in the case.

He has an Italian name and is an employe of the law firm of which "Wilson," the companion of "Marshall" on his visits to model's apartment, is a member. Hilberto "Wilson" had appeared to be a member of the New York branch office of the "Marshall" firm.

On the afternoon of the day of the murder the new anonymous figure telephoned to George P. Le Brun, secretary to Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, and asked Le Brun to find out for him just what had happened to Dorothy King.

Le Brun went to the apartment in West Fifty-seventh street, learned the truth and, as he had agreed, telephoned back to his friend "the third anonymous caller in this extraordinary tragedy," and informed him that every indication was that Dorothy King had been murdered by a person who had used chloroform.

Le Brun says it was as a favor to a friend that he went out on the Dorothy King case. He declines to give the name of his petitioner and, limits himself to the statement that the latter was telephoning in the interest of a friend whose name he does not know.

As a matter of fact this third man was telephoning at the behest of the alarmed "Wilson," who was hastening to the rescue of the even more alarmed "Mr. Marshall."

Laymen Elect Officers

Worcester, March 23.—At the laymen's conference in connection with the twenty-third annual session of the Eastern Swedish Methodist Conference here, these officers were elected today: President, William Gelotte of Quincy; vice-president, C. E. Carlson, of Boston; secretary John E. Johnson, Springfield; treasurer, Olof R. Gustafson, New York.

FLEET IS GATHERING IN BLOCK ISLAND WATERS

Providence, March 23.—The vanguard of forty rum-running vessels are off Block Island, according to reports reaching prohibition officers here today.

Twenty rum-laden schooners put out from St. Pierre, Miquelon, March 15, bound for New England shores. Twenty, or possibly twenty-five other booze carriers have sailed from the Bahamas, presumably for the same destination.

Five prohibition agents from Boston are here under secret orders. These men, it was learned on good authority, will aid the Rhode Island forces in patrolling the Rhode Island coast.

Three powerful motorboats owned by men suspected of being ring leaders in the liquor ring which has cleaned up a fortune through traffic in smuggled whiskey, disappeared from their moorings in Providence River during the night.

This city is flooded with Scotch, which is selling from $7 to $10 a bottle and is being retailed over bars at fifty cents for a fair-sized drink.

Enforcement officers admitted today that government agents had verified the "tips" of the number of rum runners headed for Block Island. It was understood that a number of smugglers have transferred their scene of operations from Five Islands off the New York shore to Block Island because of the great number of pirates who have been operating out of New York and New Je...

IRISH DEPORTEES FIGHT BACK

London, March 23. (By International News Service)—Legality of the recent deportation of 100 Irish men and women, all Republicans from England to Ireland, was attacked in the courts today by counsel for Art O'Brien, self-styled "Irish Foreign Minister in London."

A writ of habeas corpus was asked in behalf of O'Brien, who is now interned with other deportees in Mountjoy Prison at Dublin, but it was refused.

PIGGLY SHORTS CAN SETTLE AT $100 SHARE

By the Associated Press.

Memphis, Tenn., March 23.—Clarence Saunders, president of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., today offered to settle with New York traders who sold stock of the corporation "short" on the basis of $100 a share.

Mr. Saunders made public the following telegram addressed to the New York Stock Exchange:

"To avoid law suits with various brokerage houses I propose for full settlement today of all accounts of Class A common stock, Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., that I will furnish this stock upon application to the National Bank of Commerce of New York and upon payment of $100 a share."

never heard from Mr. Ruth since.

But I don't believe he really meant to hurt me. I still think if I could see him and talk to him, everything would be all right. I guess he just felt he had to act that way to keep from getting in trouble with Mrs Ruth and the public. And then he's a man and can't realize what it all means to a girl and how much misery and unhappiness and worry he caused me. He's so strong himself, he can't understand how afraid other people can get.

Dolores Dixon

No, I don't hate Babe Ruth. I loved him very dearly last Summer and I'm sure he loved me.

TRIED TO BE BRAVE.

If he had given me just enough money to see me through—the doctor and hospital and those things I would need for the baby—I would have gone away quietly and never bothered him again. But everything seems to have worked out all wrong.

I've tried to be as brave as I could. I went to work as a saleswoman and kept on working until I had to stop.

I hope to be able to pay back, some day, the friends who have cared for me since I stopped working. As soon as I can I shall make provisions for caring for my baby. If the courts don't make Babe help me, and then I'll go back to work. In spite of all that it means—all that I've still got ahead of me—I want my baby. And I know I shall be able to care for it.

THE YOUNG man should be brought to this country to meet Mr. Dempsey. If he picked up Mr. Dempsey and bent him over the top of his head, or bit him in two, that would do more to end ignorant anti-Semitic prejudice than all writings of Spinoza and Maimonides combined. That's how civilized we are.

HENRY FORD went shopping yesterday, bought 125,000 acres of coal lands in Kentucky for somewhere around $20,000,000. With his annual income that is like buying a Spring overcoat for the average citizen.

Ford proposes to show that coal can be sold at a fair price and miners at the same time paid a fair price.

Why doesn't the government undertake such enterprises? It owns plenty of coal and plenty of gasoline, and plenty of oil, and it OUGHT to be interested in what interests 99 per cent. of Americans—fair prices and fair wages.

More Cotton Mills in North Carolina Than in Bay State

Raleigh, N. C., March 23.—North Carolina has more textile mills than any other State in the Union, according to M. L. Shipman, State Commissioner of Labor, who announced today that latest figures, showing 353 cotton mills in the State, gave it a rank above Massachusetts.

Massachusetts still holds first place in total value of textile products manufactured, he said, with North Carolina a close second.

2 MORE LICENSES ARE REVOKED

Both the beverage and common victualers licenses of Carmella Albano of No. 474 Commercial street were revoked after police of the Hanover Street Station reported that two police officers had each bought a pint of whiskey from the eleven-year-old son of the proprietor at that place of business.

Louis Abdon of No. 278 Shawmut avenue also lost his license. He, the police allege, sold liquor. The licenses of Gerardo DeGratiolis of No. 172 North street and Lawrence Donovan of No. 72 I street, South Boston, were suspended for similar reasons.

COST OF LIVING SHOWS NEW INCREASE

It now costs thea verage house wife $128.60 to buy the necessaries of life which she could buy for $100 before the war.

At the peak of the high cost of living, in 1920, the same articles cost $202.60.

The cost of living increased 1½ per cent. last month over January. Higher prices for fowl, milk, butter, cheese, lard, coffee, sugar and canned goods were principally responsible. Clothing increased about 2 per cent.

The following table shows items which make up the family budget and the prices of July, 1920, last month and January:

ADULTERATED FOODS ARE FEW

Washington, March 23.—Only a small percentage of the great volume of food that enters interstate and foreign commerce is now adulterated or mis-branded, said a statement today by the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Chemistry, which is charged with enforcement of the Federal food and drugs act.

"The forms of adulteration most frequently found nowadays affect the pocketbook more than the health," said the statement.

"Too much water, the cheapest of all adulterants, has been found recently in sauer kraut, canned tomatoes, butter, flour, oysters, canned clams, and canned shrimp, and made the basis of prosecutions and seizures. Perhaps one of the most persistent forms of adulteration with which we deal is the sale of cheaper vegetable oils as olive oil."

DELOREY DETAILS MOVEMENTS DAY OF ANNIE MULLINS MURDER

POINTS OUT FLAWS IN CASE PRESENTED BY POLICE

Who killed Annie Mullins?

Peter C. Delorey, just paroled after serving fourteen years, and James Manter, serving life, say they are innocent.

The Boston American today publishes the fourth instalment of Delorey's remarkable story of the agencies that sent them away "innocent boys of eighteen."

By BERT FORD.

Peter C. Delorey today tells how he contends he and James Manter were wrongfully accused of the Annie Mullins murder, and points out how his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Delorey of Billerica, was mistaken in the story she told the police.

Peter tells how Manter got the position of chore boy on the Delorey farm through a want ad, how he agreed to work to learn English, and how each night before going to bed he read from a little Bible which his mother in Greece had given him.

Peter C. Delorey

The following excerpts from Mrs. Delorey's stenographic statement to counsel for the defence precedes Peter's resumed narrative:

Q—Mrs. Delory, how soon after Peter came to the farm on his visit was the crime committed? A.—The first Friday that Peter was here was the day the crime was committed. He came up the Sunday before. On that Sunday his Aunt Alma was here. I have tried hard to get the children to help me. Little children's memories are sometimes better than grown peoples. He came here the Sunday before the Annie Mullins murder. We all have it in our minds that it was the Sunday before the murder that Peter was here for the first time. He was here less than a month. I was sure it was less than three weeks until I found a booklet on the table yesterday morning about the Chelsea fire, and that was on April 12.

AFTER THE MURDER.

Q—Tell me about the second Friday after his arrival at the farm? A.—The Friday after the murder he left here and he had a bundle. I think it was the cranberries. He went down to work and he told me afterwards that he earned $3. He had to go down Friday night to be at the market early Saturday morning. He came up Sunday. He told me he was at mass.

Q—You are now talking about the Saturday after the Friday after the murder? A.—Yes, a week after the murder and a week later would be April 4. I looked at the almanac when I was writing this note to you (Attorney Moroney).

Q—Mrs. Delorey, when did you first see anything about the murder in the papers? A.—I think it was Sunday that I first saw it in the papers. You know I get yesterday's paper today. I don't get any paper by mail on Sundays, but my children drove down to Billerica and got it. I did not read it myself.

Q—Did it have a large heading? A—I looked at the heading. It was large, and they had pictures of the girl.

Q—Where were Jim and Peter that day when you sent for the papers? A.—They were both here when I sent for the papers.

Q—Who went for the papers? A.—One of my boys.

READ ABOUT SLAYING.

Q—Did Jim go away very often? A.—When Jim first came here he used to go away every ten days or so to see to his teeth. Once he stayed two days. After this case he commenced to go down oftener. He was sick and used to go to see his "doctor man," as he called him.

Q—Did you notice Jim and Peter reading the paper about the murder? A.—After the paper came they would talk about the murder and wonder who did it.

Q—When did you first recall these events of the Saturday morning after the murder and connect Peter and Jim with them? A.—On the 4th or 11th of February. It was a cold, cold day. The day I was in court on Brickley's case. I went from Boston to Mrs. Johnson's and when Mr. Johnson came in he said "Hello, Mrs. Delorey, didn't you get lost down here this cold day?" I said "I don't know as I have been lost. Them bad boys got me down again."

Then I said, something is telling me that I ought to tell the Cambridge police that they told me about the murder that morning before half past six o'clock. (Mrs. Delorey claimed Peter and Jim came home at 6 o'clock on the morning of March 28, 1909 and told her a girl had been murdered in Arlington, three hours before the body had been found. The boys claim Mrs. Delorey confused the date). Mrs. Johnson broke in as I was speaking to her husband and says, "Tom, what time was it they found Annie Mullins; wasn't it in the day?" And he said, "Yes." "Wasn't it 8 or 10 o'clock?" she says, and he said, "Yes, it was all of that."

I said, "How could they have told me at 6 o'clock in the morning?" They said, "Wasn't it the next day?" and I said, "No, it was Saturday."

Q—Did you talk with anyone about the Annie Mullins murder before the arrest? A.—Sometimes when somebody came here we talked about the Annie Mullins case, but it did not make any impression on me until I talked with Mrs. Johnson.

AFTER ELEVEN MONTHS.

Q—You mean when you talked with her in February? (Eleven months later.) A.—Yes, the day of Brickley's case. I was in hopes Mrs. Johnson was wrong.

Q—Did it ever occur to you Mr. Delorey that you might be wrong? A.—How could I be wrong. If Peter did not confess I would think I was wrong.

In another stenographic statement given to counsel for the defence, September 30, 1909, Mrs. Delorey admitted that she quarreled with Jim and Peter and ordered them off her farm in Billerica.

"Mrs. Delorey said in her stenographic statement that she first read about the Annie Mullins murder in the Sunday paper," said Peter Delorey today. "She is mistaken about that as she was mistaken about dates and other things. On her own admission she did not receive the papers until a day late in the mail. Saturday's papers would not, therefore, reach her until Monday.

"As a matter of fact it was I who told her about the murder when I arrived at the farm on Sunday and not on Saturday as she told the police. She sent one of her boys down to the village for the paper after I mentioned the case.

Orgy Led to Death

FRANCES BECKWITH.

LINK BANKERS WITH GIRL'S DEATH

New York, March 23.—Hints of developments that would involve two bank officials and others in exclusive Gotham circles continued to be heard today as investigation into the death of Mrs. Frances Beckwith, divorcee and Broadway chorus girl, was continued.

A great bruise on the dead girl's chin was said by Edward Campbell, real estate man, to have been received by her on the day on which the two bank officials gave her a party. It was from Campbell's apartment that Mrs. Beckwith was taken to a hospital.

Medical examiners found bruises on her chin, thigh and body.

Toronto.—Thirty new freighters, most of them built in Great Britain, will be placed in service on the Great Lakes this year. The steamers were designed for both lake and ocean travel.

HOORAY FOR US, SAYS PHELAN AS HE QUITS

As an official swan song, preliminary to his departure April 1 from the office of Emergency Fuel Administrator, James J. Phelan today sent a circular letter to all local fuel distributors thanking them for their assistance.

One paragraph read:

"We all, I am sure, realized when we accepted our appointments, that it was a work from which we would derive publicly very little commendation and that none of us particularly looked for such, but that we would be subjected to more or less criticism on the part of some who might think that all which might be done to relieved the situation was not being done.

"However, we can feel, I am sure, that the people of Massachusetts, generally speaking, are most appreciative of the work which this organization has done and the results which it has accomplished."

Steel Trust Wins Decision

Washington, March 23. — The United States Steel Corporation, through its subsidiary, the United States Steel Products Company, may continue to operate steamships through the Panama Canal, under a decision today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

CONTINUE AUTO SHOW

Owing to the congestion at the Automobile Show, we realize that it was impossible to give everybody the attention that their interest merited; and that it may be possible for us to extend every courtesy to those people considering Buick Cars and to give everybody an opportunity to inspect them in detail, we are keeping open evenings for two weeks following the Auto Show.

The demand for Buick Cars this winter has been unprecedented, and the sales during January and February indicate clearly that the demand will greatly exceed the supply.

Railroad difficulties and freight embargoes are seriously handicapping deliveries.

Owing to the above conditions, we earnestly advise the placing of your order immediately if you desire an early delivery.

LIE PASSED BY POINCARE IN WILD SCENE

Paris, March 23 (By the Associated Press).—Premier Poincare started a scene of wild disorder in the Chamber of Deputies today when he called Communist Deputy Andre Berthon an "abominable scoundrel."

The Premier was angered by Communist insinuations that he was controlled by Deputy Leon Daudet, Royalist leader.

"That man," shouted M. Poincare, pointing at Deputy Berthon, "dared to say he had against me and nine abominable evidence which I feared would be published.

"He lied when he said it," the Premier angrily ejaculated.

The deputies jumped to their feet, all, with the exception of the Communists and a few of the radicals, cheering Poincare madly.

The scene followed a demand by Berhton for immediate discussion of the government's request for supplemental credits for the Ruhr occupation. The Premier said he would give the finance commission next week the information it had asked.

M. Berthon characterized this answer as "equivocal," and M. Poincare, facing the Communists Berthon and Vaillant-Courturier, retorted:

"If I were as sure of your wisdom and prudence as I am of that of the majority of the Chamber, I would ask inediate discussion."

Addressing Vaillan-Couturier, he said:

"You will give an account before the bar of justice for your abominable articles."

COAL SITUATION TO BE STABILIZED

Pittsburgh, March 23.—Safe storage of bituminous coal is probably the only solution of stabilizing the coal industry, according to a joint report made public today by the Carnegie Institute of Technology and the United States Bureau of Mines. "If some system could be devised whereby coal could be stored economically, with little deterioration and danger of spontaneous combustion, the mines would be operated practically the whole year—say 300 working days, instead of 180 to 270 days, the report says.

Kiss So Ardent Lynn Wife Rushes to the Police Station

"My husband assaulted me brutally. See his finger marks on my neck."

Mrs. Margaret Purington of No. 19 George street, Lynn, rushed into the police station today and told Patrolman Matthew L. Casey.

Casey found Purington placidly eating breakfast at home.

"Assault nothing," said Purington. "I was merely hugging my wife. Any marks on her neck are where I kissed her."

"Don't be so like a cave man," advised Casey as he left.

CHARGES SOVIET SHOT 200 PRISONERS

London, March 23. (By International News Service).—Two hundred political prisoners were shot down in towns in Georgia, while others were tortured amidst the corpses in the streets, according to a formal charge made here today by a representative of the Georgian Republican against the Russian Soviet.

The Georgians accuse the Russian Bolsheviats of creating a reign of terror in the little trans-Caucasian Republic. The victims of the shootings were political prisoners who were alleged to have conspired against the Soviet government of Georgia imposed by Moscow.

Many Georgian villages are reported to have been burned and thousands of persons imprisioned.

Georgia was formerly a part of the old Russian Empire. After the Communist revolution it was formed into a separate State and eventually supporters of the Moscow government gained control. Lately a revolutionary movement has broken out, which caused the executions and arrests.

$60,000 FIRE LOSS IN LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL

Lowell, March 23.—Fire, starting in the boiler room of the Page street annex of the Lowell High School, swept through the four floors to the roof, causing a damage of $60,000, early today. The brick walls of the structure enabled the firemen, called by two alarms, to prevent the flames from spreading. About 600 pupils will have to await temporary quarters.

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM '240-LB. BRUISER'

When Mrs. Ada M. Avery of South Boston appeared in the Suffolk divorce court today for a divorce from Charles D. E. Avery, she discovered to her astonishment, that she had never been legally married.

The couple were married one week after Avery was divorced from a previous wife, while the law requires a two-year interval. Judge Hall told her she would have to have the marriage annulled.

She described Charles as a 240-pound bruiser, whose favorite indoor sport was blacking here eyes. He slept with a hatchet under his pillow, chased her down the street with a loaded revolver and exhibited other indications of devotion to her, she said.

One day he was so enraged at meeting her on the street, that he tore off her dress. Another time, according to her story, he kicked her out of bed and she had to spend the night on the floor of an empty tenement next door.

Upjohn, Missing 14 Days, Returns, but Is Incoherent

Brockton, March 23.—Richard E. Upjohn, forty, of the Franklin Last Company, whose unexplained absence from the city for fourteen days brought about suspension of work for fifteen employes at the last shop, pending inquiry into the financial situation of the business, has returned to his home. He is under the care of the family doctor, Mrs. Upjohn says. He is ill and unable to talk coherently or tell of his whereabouts since he left home. Work has been resumed at the factory.

3 ARRESTED FOR CAMBRIDGE SLASHING

Three men were arrested on Boylston street today by Patrolman Bosworth of the Back Bay station on suspicion in connection with the hold-up and slashing of Lewis C. De Pineros in Pleasant street, Cambridge.

De Pineros, who lives at No. 623 Columbus avenue, South End, struggled into the Cambridge police station bleeding from two cuts in the right wrist.

He said he was walking along Pleasant street when three young men stepped from a doorway and slashed him with a knife. They demanded his money.

When he told them he was broke, two held him up while the third went through his pockets.

Many Society Matrons Giving Dinners Tonight, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

ANDREA ADIE'S hobby is horses. She's ridden and trotted and cantered many an aristocratic steed to blue-ribbon place in the show ring. The type of girl known as a "good sport." Rather tall and oyish, and absolutely at home in a riding outfit.

We've seen a lot of nice Spring weather carefully bottled up in the store window, for us to look at. As soon as this nice weather gets to be noticed somewhere besides the shop windows, I suppose Miss Andrea will be giving orders to "saddle me valiant steed" and go dashing off for a bracing canter.

Just at present Miss Adie, who's the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Adie of Chestnut Hill, has as her guest Miss Katherine Ingalls. Miss Ingalls is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Ingalls of New York.

TONIGHT'S senior supper at the Copley-Plaza marks the close of this popular series for the season. Quite a large number of young matrons are giving dinners preceding the affair, the hostesses including among others Mrs. Gerald D. Boardman, Mrs. David Cheever, and Mrs. Charles P. Greenough 2nd.

Also giving a dinner tonight is Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman—clever author of this year's Vincent Club show—who is entertaining the ushers and attendants of the Rogers-Higginson bridal party as Nina Higginson's family are in mourning. Of these ushers, by the way, only two are Boston men, George H. Lyman, Jr., and William Prescott.

Mrs. Whitman, who later takes her guests on to the supper dance, only recently returned from a trip to Palm Beach. Now she's kept very busy all the time with the daily rehearsals for the Vincent show.

MRS. William F. Wharton of Beacon street is sailing shortly for Paris to join her son, Philip Wharton, who's been working for more than a year at the Paris branch of the National City Bank of New York. Young Wharton is a member of the Harvard '15 class.

Apropos of Paris—that happy bridal couple, the Harcourt Amorys, Jr. (Susannah Wood), stopped for a while at the gay French capital during their rather brief honeymoon abroad. They are expected to return to these shores early in April, I believe, when they will go to make their home on the North Shore. Their marriage was solemnized last month at Emmanuel Church.

MRS. HELEN DRAPER TAFT has concluded her sojourn in Bermuda, and stopped for a few days in New York at the St. Regis en route to Boston.

Also in New York from Boston are Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Baylies who are registered at the Hotel Belmont.

Betty Alden

Miss Andrea Adie is one of Boston's most skillful equestriennes. She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Adie of Chestnut Hill.

PHONE CO. YIELDS; TO PAY MILLION

Frightened by the belligerent attitude of the 76,000 stockholders in this State, the officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company have agreed to pay a tax of $1,000,000 to the State this year, it became known today.

Since the time when the late Winthrop Murray Crane, a heavy holder of telephone stock, was Governor, the company has been paying an excise tax of about $1,000,000 a year. This year, the company served notice that it would pay the tax no longer.

Thereupon, hundreds of shareholders, representing enormous holdings, declared that control of the telephone corporation had passed over to New York promoters, and threatened to organize and to wage a fight to throw out the officers. In order to avoid that fight, the officers have agreed that the $1,000,000 tax shall be paid at least one more year from the treasury of the corporation.

STUBBORN MAN ON HUNGER STRIKE

Springfield, March 23.—Charles G. Rolf of No. 29 Windsor street, father of Patrolman Carl Rolf of the police department, is what the old timers used to characterize as "sot" in his ways.

Charles decided he would not contribute further to the support of his wife and minor daughter, with the result that he was arrested March 15. He refused to furnish bail, and went on a hunger strike in jail.

Today in court he was found guilty of neglect to provide and ordered to pay his wife $14 a week. Judge Wallace R. Heady then placed Rolf on probation for one year, after he admitted he had $400 in the bank.

Apparently the hunger strike had failed to weaken Charles' will power, for he left the court declaring loudly to Attorney Thomas F. McGlynn that he would go to jail before he would obey the court's order.

STELLA FORCES DELAY IN THE FARRAR SUIT

New York, March 23.—Denial that Miss Stella Larrimore, nineteen-year-old actress and sister of Francine Larrimore, Broadway star, was guilty of illegal relations with Lou Tellegen, was made today by Louis B. Brodsky, her counsel at a hearing in the divorce suit brought against the actor by Geraldine Farrar.

Brodsky obtained from Referee Mahony an adjournment of one week in order that he might peruse the record pertaining to the alleged courtship of "Miss L" by Tellegen and produce his client at an open hearing to make public denial of the charges in which her name appeared.

"Miss L." was one of three corespondents named by the diva, and testimony was given at the last hearing by detectives employed by Miss Farrar that while Tellegen was playing here in 1921 in the title role of "Don Juan" he many times escorted "Miss L." to her apartment on Riverside Drive and once spent the night there. After this evidence had become public, Miss Francine Larrimore and other members of the family denied the charges vigorously, contending that the evidence was simply "the dirty frameup of hired detectives."

Miss Larrimore did not appear at today's hearing.

TO QUIZ DIVORCEE OVER LICENSE

When Mrs. Ethel Maxfield Mortlock appears at the marriage registry in Providence City Hall to obtain a license to marry Nathaniel Thayer Loring, a Boston cotton broker, she will be questioned regarding the statements she made there two days ago when she filed an application.

Mrs. Mortlock is the pretty thirty-three-year-old divorcee who was named by Mrs. Loring, formerly of Newton Centre, as the woman who broke up her home. Mrs. Loring was granted a divorce six months ago and under the law of this State her husband cannot marry in Massachusetts for two more years.

When Loring and Mrs. Mortlock took out the license in Providence the divorcee said she lived at No. 91 Centre street, Brookline. This address is the home of Mrs. Sarah A. Rogers, an elderly woman.

Mrs. Rogers' daughter told a Boston American reporter today that Mrs. Mortlock does not live there. "She not only does not live here," said Mrs. Rogers' daughter, "but we never even heard of a woman by that name or by her maiden name."

PLAN TO PHOTOGRAPH SPIRIT AT FUNERAL

Los Angeles, March 23.—An attempt to photograph the spirit of Mrs. Mary Fairfield McVicker, associate pastor of the Central Spiritualist Church, is planned by her co-religionists at her funeral. Mrs. McVicker believed her spirit would return at that hour and be so plainly visible that its photograph could be taken by an ordinary camera.

BAY STATE LEADS IN LABOR LEGISLATION

E. A. Johnson, president of the Central Labor Union, addressing an audience of churchmen in Keith's Theatre today, asserted that Massachusetts is ahead of most other States in regard to labor legislation. He declared employers were opposing all labor bills on the ground that further legislation along this line would seriously handicap employers in Massachusetts competing with employers in other New England States.

BALMY SPRING IS NOW ON LOCATION

Oh boy, Spring is here.

If you do not believe it just consult the well known thermometer. The official reading at 9 o'clock today was 64.

The long awaited balmy Spring air enveloped the city and by noon 99.5 per cent. of the population was afflicted with that common malady, Spring fever.

Golf clubs and fishing rods were eagerly handled, baseball gloves and bats were brought out, top coats blossomed on the streets and 1001 other indisputable proofs of the arrival of Spring were much in evidence.

The thermometer stood at 56 at 1 o'clock this morning. It dropped to 53 at 5 o'clock and then started mounting. This was the warmest day of 1923.

SAYS WIFE CALLED HIM TOO 'LADY LIKE'

His wife Dorothy was cruel to him, James H. Vinton of Roxbury told Chief Justice Hall in Superior Court divorce session today. Vinton, who is colored and a mental practitioner, specified that she called him too lady-like for a husband; objected to his women patients, and when he was trying to do mental work, ran the carpet-sweeper over his feet.

So, Vinton added, he gave her $150 to go to Florida and $150 more not to contest his divorce suit. Decision was reserved.

FOREIGN EXPERTS TO TALK ON ECONOMICS

Captain Alex Aaronsohn, who had the decoration of the Distinguished Service Order pinned on his breast by the King of England, and Synd Hossain, internationally known journalist, author and authority on political and economic relations between the East and the West, will deliver addresses tomorrow noon at the luncheon of the Foreign Policy Association at the Hotel Brunswick.

BALK AT EXPANDING MONROE DOCTRINE

Santiago, Chile, March 23 (By the Associated Press).—With the arrival of the Uruguayan delegation, it became known Uruguay is not disposed to press upon the Pan-American conference her scheme for a league of American nations.

It is reported a majority of the delegations, including that of the United States, is opposed to considering the plan at this conference.

There seems general agreement that the proposal could not be discussed without the Monroe Doctrine and that its adoption would virtually mean the protection afforded by the Monroe Doctrine would be expanded into a mutual agreement among all American nations for defence against possible European aggression.

AGREE ITALY SHALL HOLD CASTELORIZZA

London, March 23 (By the Associated Press).—Three days of discussion by the allied experts on the Near East have led to a mutual agreement on most of the disputed points raised by the Turkish counter-proposals to the Lausanne peace treaty draft. The sub-committee considering the territorial phases, it is stated, have agreed to support Italy's plea for the retention of the Island of Castelorizza, which the Turks proposed should be returned to them.

A deep blue fox trot that's just made for dancing

HANDY is the man who invented blues, and Handy, the composer, plays them as no other can. There's a mean, groaning strain in this record that you don't run into every day.* It's just another case where OKeh Records demonstrate that their great success is due to better reproduction.

FUGITIVE GIRL CAUGHT IN POLICE RAID

A "tip" that Irene Bonsey, nineteen years old, wanted by the Arlington police for theft, was staying at a house in Auburndale, resulted in a raid today by Newton police on the home of Mrs. Jeanette Kelley, thirty-one, No. 2015 Commonwealth avenue.

The Bonsey girl, Mrs. Kelley and two men were arrested on a statutory charge.

The men were James J. O'Connell, twenty-three-year-old chauffeur, of Reed street, Cambridge, and Otto H. Relman, twenty-seven, chauffeur, of Clarendon avenue, Somerville.

Judge Bacon in Newton Court fined the Kelley woman and the men $30 each. The Bonsey girl was held for the Arlington police.

GIRL'S 'RANSOM' NOTES DEATH CASE CLEW

New York, March 23.—A young mother with a lurid imagination, who wrote cash-compelling notes about being "held in ransom" and signed them "Beloved Rose," was sought by Brooklyn detectives today in their hunt for the murderer of "Eccentric Lou" Schechinger, twenty-nine-year-old hammer victim, believed to have been slain for the $3,000 he kept hidden in his little shack on Jamaica bay.

There were at least two women in the young man's life, detectives have learned. One of them wrote a note discovered among Schechinger's effects today. It was postmarked Brooklyn March 9, and read:

"Darling Louie: Please send me $25 in a hurry. I am held for ransom. When I am free we will get them and I will see you in Brooklyn. Your beloved Rose."

On the other side of the note was written:

"I am worried stiff about the boy."

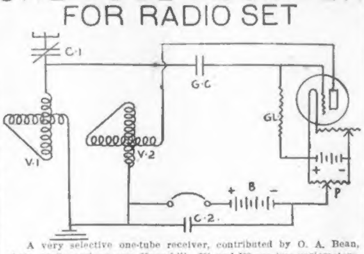

The police have learned that "Rose" had made previous requests for money to the young man, the latest a month ago, but they declined to reveal any more than the few words in the "ransom" note.

Schechinger's body was found yesterday by a relative. The shack had been looted of its hidden $3,000.

HARDING'S SISTER GOES SLUMMING

New York, March 23.—Miss Abigail V. Harding, President Harding's sister, who, with her sister, Mrs. Carolyn Harding Votaw, recently returned from a tour of South America, went on a slumming trip today with a party of friends through the White Light theatrical district, picturesque Greenwich village and the lower East Side. Chaperoned by Secret Service agents, they visited several cabarets, and enjoyed the entertainment. At a Kenmare street basement inn a special program was hastily arranged.

ACTRESS PLAYS IN CAST WITH EX-HUSBAND

Though their domestic paths may lead far apart, Viola Roach and E. Lionel Bevans, the husband she has just divorced, are still treading the same professional path. Both are members of the Boston Stock Company, playing at the St. James Theatre.

"After we had been together in many parts of the world, my husband suddenly abandoned me in Boston in 1917, and refused to live with me any more," the actress told Chief Justice Hall in the Suffolk Superior Divorce Court.

Miss Roach was denied the right to resume her maiden name, because of her little ten-year-old daughter, Philippa Anne. The actress and her husband were married in London, England, in 1912, and came to America in 1916. They have lived in Boston since 1917.

KNOCKS OUT OFFICER, FLEES WITH TRUCK

Patrolman Frank T. Lamb found a large motor truck standing in the shadows of East Eagle street, East Boston. The lights were out. He was examining the machine when a stranger came up.

"What's the matter with your lights?" the officer asked.

"I don't know. I'll have to fix them," came the reply.

So saying, the man swung twice, once to the nose and once to the jaw. The officer took the count. The truck disappeared with a roar. Lamb was treated for deep cuts of the face at East Boston Relief Hospital.

LYNN PATROLMAN IS BITTEN BY RAT

A big rat leaped at Patrolman Wilbert A. Staples in Lafayette park, Lynn, today, landing on the collar of the officer's coat. Staples dashed the rat off, but it leaped again, landed at his face, bit one of his cheeks and clawed the skin. Staples drew his club and knocked the rat away with a blow that killed it. The bite and scratches were cauterized at Lynn Hospital.

HELD AS AUTO THIEF AFTER CRASH

"That car's going at a pretty snappy rate," reflected Patrolman Michael J. Sullivan of City Square station.

He was observing an automobile cutting through Thompson square, Charlestown.

It seemed to Sullivan that the driver was watching him more tha[n] the roadway.

"Crash!"

That was the automobile side-swiping a pillar of the Elevate[d] structure, which led to Sullivan go[-]ing over to take a closer look.

This led to the arrest of the driver, Frank J. Kelliher, of Main street, Charlestown, on a charge of havin[g] stolen an automobile.

For the car, the police say, wa[s] one reported as stolen the night be[-]fore on North Market street fro[m] David D. Ackerman of the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Kelliher was taken to City square police station and thence to Han[-]over street station, in whose ter[-]ritory the Ackerman car was taken. One of its mudguards was damage[d] against the Elevated pillar.

CRONKHITE CASE TO BE TRIED HERE

Trial of Sergeant Roland R. Pothier of Central Falls, R. I. for the [illegible] of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite, son of the major general, at Camp Lewis, Washington, on [illegible] 1918, will begin in United States District Court here on Tuesday.

Pothier once made a confession in which he implicated Captain Robert Rosenbluth of New York. He asserted [illegible] fired the fatal shot [illegible] of the captain. Later he repudiated this statement.

The case has attracted national attention because of the prominence of the principals and because of the [illegible] fight Captain Rosenbluth has made to save himself from conviction. The pressing of charges against him was likened to the famous Dreyfus case of France.

Major Cronkhite, Rosenbluth, a wealthy New Yorker, and Pothier were on the target range together. The major is reported as having fired his pistol three times at a tin can and then a fourth shot was heard.

The army board of inquiry reported first that the major had accidentally shot himself. Later information was brought to Major General Cronkhite and he had the body of his son exhumed. It was then stated that the dead man had been shot through the chest in such a way that it would have been impossible for him to have inflicted the wound himself.

The trial is expected to bring to Boston a number of army officials of prominence as well as attorneys from New York of widespread repute. It is probable that Captain Rosenbluth will be called as a witness.

SEVERAL DROWNED IN SIOUX CITY FLOOD

Sioux City, Iowa, March 23.—Held by an ice gorge five miles long at Brassfield's Island, Spring flood waters of the Missouri River today threatened to sweep through parts of this city. Already the backed up water, which continued to rise, had caused one death. Several other persons were reported drowned and hundreds of head of live stock, implements and dwellings were carried away. This property damage was estimated in excess of $100,000.

Two ineffectual attempts were made to dynamite the ice jam by dropping bombs from an airplane.

SUGAR CHARGES START U. S. PROBE

Washington, March 23.—Charges that there is a conspiracy in the sugar trade to raise prices were said at the Department of Justice today to be of sufficient gravity to warrant a preliminary inquiry by the Federal government's legal officers.

A conference was arranged between Acting Attorney General Seymour and Secretary Hoover with a view of joint action.

A representative of the department also was directed to obtain from Basil Manly, director of the People's Legislative Service, who wrote to President Harding in connection with the sugar situation, information he had to substantiate conspiracy charges.

If this information warrants a formal investigation, officials said, the commerce department also will participate. Secretary Hoover was charged by Mr. Manly with being largely responsible for the recent bulge in the sugar market, because of a department statement which was interpreted as forecasting a shortage.

ISADORA'S POET TO FLEE TO AFRICA

Berlin, March 23 (By International News Service).—Civilization is too much for S. Serge Essenine, temperamental husband of Isadore Duncan, and he revealed today that he was going to Africa to get back to nature. Isadore will not accompany him.

Serge and his wife have quarreled on more than one occasion.

Their last quarrel wrecked an apartment in the fashionable Crillon Hotel in Paris and sent Serge on his way to Russia.

That was about a month ago, but so far Serge, who is a Russian poet, has got only as far as Berlin. The cabarets in Berlin are very lively.

Serge said.

"I cannot bear European civilization. It is false. I want a civilization that is real. Consequently I am going to Africa. There they do not do a thing because someone else does it. It is a happy, natural life. I am going to seek truth in Africa."

YELLOW FEVER HERO FOLK IS RETIRED

Washington, March 23.—Army orders today [illegible] the retirement [illegible] of [illegible] Sergeant Levi E. Folk, who, with Walter Reed, was a pioneer in the conquest of yellow fever. When yellow fever appeared [illegible] among the troops at Columbia barracks [illegible] Private Folk volunteered to nurse the patients. He served as a volunteer for experimentation, submitted to inoculation from mosquitoes and contracted the disease. On his recovery he was appointed [illegible] to determine the [illegible] of reinfection.

FINES, NOT FARES, FOR TAXI MAN

"What have you to say?" Judge Logan asked Clarence B. Logan, taxi driver, in City Court today.

"I've got nothing to say," replied Logan. "I'll appeal it."

"Wait a minute," said the Court. "I'll give you something to appeal. I'll fine you $5 for refusing to show your registration paper, $[illegible] for each [illegible] charge ($10) and $[illegible] for allowing your car to stand in a restricted district."

"I'll appeal all that, too," said Logan and he did.

This was after Patrolman Harvey D. Yates told about seeing Logan's taxi [illegible] without lights in West Springfield street.

Yates said Logan told him it was none of [illegible] business about the lights and they would be turned on when Logan "was —— good and ready."

Because the stock will never be more complete nor the variety wider, and day by day, in every way, the old ulster is getting heavier and heavier.

We wish we could describe the attractiveness of these new Spring Coats, but words are inadequate. The beautiful soft imported fabrics come in unusual shades and uncommon color combinations. They are exclusively styled, superbly tailored and luxuriously silk finished, most of them being Kuppenheimer masterpieces.

There are also colorful homespuns, neat herringbones and plain colors in knitted or woven fabrics—not to mention the ever-correct and popular silk lined Chesterfield in oxford shades.

STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN
By Jo Swerling

"RAZOR" FENTON SHOWS ONE OF THE WAYS IN which, during 25 years of stealing things, he got a total of $350,000. He is using the services of a gun broad to nick the sucker for his rock—an old but never-failing stall. The close-up shows "Razor" in his new vocation, telling the world it doesn't pay.

THE LEATHER LIFTER.

A slim, well-dressed little man stumbled against me as I stepped out of the restaurant on Summer street. He was profuse and courtly in his apology

"Sorry, sir," he said, "Awfully awkward of me Sorry."

His face was strangely familiar. I started away. He came along and gripped my arm

"Still the same old fall guy," he said. "Once a sucker, always a john. Here's your prop"

He handed me my stickpin.

[illegible] your poke and your souper while I was about [illegible] How are [illegible]?

His f[illegible] [illegible] guilty [illegible] I remembered. [illegible] that ever [illegible] a [illegible] of leather [illegible] pocket of [illegible] guns [illegible] with awe [illegible] garnered $[illegible] and got [illegible] four stretches in the big house and two [illegible] the Hotel that wro[illegible] the rules and regulations of pickp[illegible] In the grand old days in Chicago he worked with Jimmy Ryan the Postal Kid [illegible] Frenchman [illegible] light-fingered [illegible] His gun broad was the famous Dora Williams When the [illegible] Razor wasn't so good Razor was always [illegible] and willing to clean out a ringer or tap a damper

So You Can Get the Drift:

SUCKER, FALL GUY, JOHN	A victim
PROP, ROCK, STONE	Stickpin
LEATHER, POKE	Wallet
SOUPER	Watch
MOB	A group of pickpockets working together
STALL	The man who distracts the victim's attention

MECHANIC	The pickpocket who actually does the work
LEATHER LIFTER, DIP, GUN, CANNON	A pickpocket
ELBOW RICHARD, DICK	Plain clothes copper
HARNESS BULL, FLATTIE	Uniformed copper
STRETCH, JOLT	Term in prison

GUN BROAD	A female pickpocket
LEFT BRITCH	Left trousers pocket
COAT PIT	Inside coat pocket
RINGER	Cash register
DAMPER	Cash till

For 25 Years He Was a Predatory Bird

He is the only pickpocket who ever succeeded in opening a left britch that was protected by a safety pin He could extract a wallet from any coat pit that was.

For twenty-five years "Razor" was a migratory, predatory bird. Like the birds he went North in the Summer and South in the Winter following the crowds and collecting as he went. He toured with Bryan in 1896 and wound up the campaign with $35,000 In 1902 he was one of a mob of fifty dips who accompanied Roosevelt on his tour across the country and that netted him $60,000 On a dare he grabbed the souper of Senator Mark Hanna in a street fair in Kalamazoo in 1897. He went to London during the Diamond Jubilee and came back broke because the Britishers never carried any money in their wallets.

It was "Razor" Fenton who invented the "Guess your weight" gag. In this scene of separating the sucker from his sugar, the scales man, as he offers to give you a free weigh, really gives you away free, for as he taps your hips to see how much you weigh he marks a cross on your clothes with a piece of chalk indicating just where the poke is sunk.

"Razor" slipped me the bad news.

"I grabbed your rock just to show you that I still know how," he said. "But I'm through with the old game—have been for six years. Got wise at the Pacific Mission, where Billy Sunday came clean, right after I ended a stretch of eighteen months at Elmira

"Now I'm not taking things, but giving them. I'm slipping the world the info that it doesn't pay.

10 Years Wasted in Various Prisons

"I spent three years in the big house in Montreal, two years in the State stir at Huntsville, Texas, two at Jefferson City, Mo., eighteen months at Elmira and a couple of short bits. I've been arrested a hundred times, jumped bail ninety times and I've stolen $350,000 And when I came to at the Pacific Mission six years ago, and checked up, I found I was broke and had about ten years of my life wasted in various prisons

So now I'm trying to make up for it I lecture I show the kids that might be tempted to go after the easy money that it isn't easy money at all It's the hardest kind of money there is. Most of the $350 000 I nicked went to lawyers and crooked cops. The rest of it blew up the way that kind of money always does

"Monday night I speak at the Dudley Street Baptist Church at Roxbury."

"Razor" went on his way. I looked down at my vest. It was unbuttoned The bill purse that had been in my left britch was now in my coat pit

I'll be there Monday night Art is art.

CRIQUI-KILBANE BOUT BARRED BY MULDOON

New York, March 23.—The advent from France tomorrow of Eugene Criqui, European featherweight champion, was expected to clear up the uncertainty over the prospect of his meeting with Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, the world's champion, in New York State, which Promoter Tom O'Rourke has insisted is definitely arranged for the Polo Grounds June .. Criqui is a passenger on the incoming Paris.

Officials of the State Boxing Commission were quoted today as declaring that they know nothing of such a bout, and Chairman William Muldoon stated that he would not permit it in this State since Kilbane is under suspension here and deprived of his title for refusing to accept the challenge of Johnny Dundee of New York last Summer.

If Promoter O'Rourke is unable to stage the Criqui-Kilbane bout at the Polo Grounds or somewhere without the jurisdiction of the commission, Promoter Tex Rickard may try to match the Frenchman with Dundee at the Yankee Stadium this Summer. Rickard said he would not take any action until he knows how the project of his rival fares.

STASIAK FAILS TO GET A FALL; SO CALZA WINS

George Calza won the feature bout at the weekly wrestling show staged at the Grand Opera House under the direction of the Old Howard management.

Stanley Stasiak, the Polish Hercules, had agreed to throw the Italian mat idol in seventy-five minutes but failed. It was not Stasiak's fault that he did not dispose of the giant Italian, but Calza avoided all troublous positions.

Stasiak was the aggressor for an hour and a quarter. Time and again he forced Calza to grasp for the edge of the mat to get on his feet in the centre.

Calza resorted to several toe holds when in a clinch and distracted Stasiak, who busied himself with arm locks and body holds.

The Polish Hercules, a master at Greco Roman style wrestling, devoted more of his time to upper body holds, while his opponent proved an adept at catch-as-catch-can.

It was a whale of a bout.

Three or four times it looked as though Stasiak would win when he clamped on head locks and strong arm locks. However, the Italian, with his powerful and long limbs kicked his way to freedom, or Stasiak released his hold rather than break any bones.

In the semi-final, Frank Yusko disposed of Farmer Parker in twenty-five minutes and forty-five seconds with a front chancery and body scissors. Parker substituted for William Moody, who failed to put in an appearance.

Louis Andrews disposed of Burt Williams in the curtain-raiser with a double arm lock, twenty-one minutes and five seconds.

SIXTY AMATEUR BOXERS BATTLE FOR N. E. TITLES TONIGHT

PLENTY OF ACTION IS ASSURED THE FANS

By JACK CONWAY.

Amateur title bouts!

You will get them in eight classes at Mechanics Building tonight.

Sixty boxers will battle for New England championships in a tourney which should furnish its quota of thrills.

Professional shows SOMETIMES please; amateur tourneys ALWAYS do.

This is because our simon-pure glove wielders do not spend their time thinking about million dollar houses, return matches and such things. They have mastered the rules of fighting and they abide by them in the ring as well as in conversation.

You will see people at tonight's show who are lovers of boxing but who never attend a professional bout. They go where they get action and real [illegible]

Sometimes our amateurs are a little crude, but they always do their best [illegible]. That's all the fans ask.

Floyd Johnson on Way Here for Thompson Go

Floyd Johnson, sensational California heavyweight, is on his way to Boston from Hot Springs, Ark., where he did his training for his ten-round mill with Ray Thompson, which will be staged under the direction of the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building on Monday night.

Johnson is the world's most sensational heavyweight and is considered by many experts as the coming champion. It is the opinion of many that if Johnson is not rushed along too rapidly that he will be able to conquer Dempsey in about two years' time.

The Californian has had brilliant success in the ring. He has never been defeated [illegible] Johnson's victims.

Johnson is matched to battle Jess Willard at the Milk Fund show in New York on May 12, and so cannot very well afford to receive a setback at the hands of Thompson. The latter is a soldier fighter and has experienced quite a lot of success in bouts in New York.

Medbury Says---

By John P. Medbury

YOU never realize how seldom most people travel until you hear the foreign questions that a lot of tourists ask. One guy who had never been in New York before walked into the Waldorf Astoria and asked the clerk if the hotel kept open all night

WHEN he was told that the hotel never closed he wanted to know what time he had to go to bed.

The clerk told him that the cheapest room was six dollars. Then the tourist asked him how much it was by the day.

BEFORE he went up to his room he asked how much they charged for their writing paper.

IN a few minutes he phones to the clerk and tells him to light the heater as he wants to take a bath

HE had never seen a shower before so he runs down-stairs and tells the manager that the pipe in the bathroom is full of holes and is leaking.

THEN he adds: "But luckily the pipe is combined and the water is dripping into the bathtub."

BUT he told them if they couldn't fix it not to worry, that he'd hold an umbrella over him while he took his bath.

A LITTLE later he called the manager and asked if it was all right to smoke in the room and what time he had to put the lights out.

THE clerk told him that they served dinner in the dining room but until it was the tourist could have a can of city fellow. "It doesn't take me that long to eat."

HE wanted to know if they couldn't make it from 4 until seven because he didn't have time to eat in the dining room for four hours.

HE said that would keep him up until ten o'clock and he had to be at the theatre at eight-thirty.

FINALLY he went into the dining room and ate his dinner and then thought he was putting it over on the hotel by paying his check and sneaking out of the dining room while nobody was looking.

HE wanted to be sociable so he asked the waiter to sit down at the table and have dinner with him.

THE waiter refused and when the tourist got back to the country he told the farmers how stuck up the city fellows were.

HE listened to the orchestra for ten or fifteen minutes and then went out and complained to the manager. He said: "You shouldn't allow those men in there; if they want to practice they should stay in their rooms."

HE stayed there seven days and when they gave him a bill for forty-two dollars he wouldn't pay it, he said the clerk told him the room would be six dollars and he thought that was for a week.

WHAT SORT OF EXAMPLE ARE YOU SETTING YOUR CHILDREN?

Be careful of the promises you make to your children and be careful of the promises you make to anyone.

But the child peculiarly needs truth and expects truth from the parent.

When he reaches the time when he feels that he cannot depend on what his father and mother tell him he concludes that he cannot trust anyone.

The next deduction is that if others do not fulfill their promises why should he?

The bad seed is sown and bears fruit.

Few parents realize that their children are second editions of themselves.

If there is quarreling and bickering in the home the children will grow up contentious members of society.

If fathers and mothers are short and surly the children will be.

If high ideals prevail in the home and are lived by the parents the children will become imbued with high purpose and endeavor.

What sort of example are you setting your children?

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Anne Receives a Telephone Message Telling Her Jim Is on the Way Home, and Promptly Faints

OUR [illegible] was mostly of the business but Betty's cute in[illegible] and alert suggestions made [illegible] personalities could [illegible]

[illegible] gaily on our arrival. Rosa did not appear on the scene for tea nor during the cosy hour that followed. In spite of the [illegible] I felt thus far to be free from her pricks and stabs, I found [myself] on the qui vive for her [illegible] I felt so great a need for [talking] things over with her that I was almost eager to have our [illegible] and friendly atmosphere [illegible] by the needs of [illegible] Jim's affairs.

The capture of Jennings suggested that there were other spies working for Dick. I wanted to put Rosa on her guard for I felt that [illegible] even Ralph Lacy would be able to foresee or prevent.

When Rosa did not appear at dinner time I found myself wondering if she could be avoiding me [illegible] enough Virginia was puzzled by Rosa's absence, and was uncertain how long to keep dinner waiting for her. But the matter was settled by a phone call for Pat. He came back announcing that someone whose voice he did not know had phoned to say that Mrs. Cordova was unavoidably detained and might not return until next day.

"Had the messenger a foreign [accent]?" I asked, thinking of Neko.

"No. I couldn't make him out. He sounded familiar—as if I'd heard his voice before. But he was guarding it in a husky whisper as if he wanted to make sure I didn't get him," said Pat. "Well, we might as well sit down to the festive board."

With a great sense of uneasiness I followed the others to dinner. Rosa's absence filled me with forebodings. The strange message to Pat added to my sense of uneasiness. And when I was summoned to the phone before the meal was half over, I had a jumpy feeling that crisis had come.

"Is this Mrs. J. H. Harrison?" asked a formal voice.

"Yes," I replied.

"Mrs. Harrison speaking?" insisted the strange voice.

"Mrs. Harrison speaking—Mrs. Harrison at the phone," I said punctiliously.

"I have a message for you. Are you ready to take it?"

"Yes," I murmured, tense and impatient, all my forebodings closing down in a cloud.

Then [illegible] of time and place and out of this [illegible] message dated that afternoon:

"'In the harbor. Home tonight.' Signed J. H. Harrison. Did you get that?" intoned the strange voice.

"In the harbor. Home tonight," I repeated. Then everything slipped away from me. In a terrible black void I heard a voice—my voice calling:

"Jim's coming. Jim's here. Jim——"

Then darkness.

But consciousness [illegible] back and I found myself dizzy in a mist of happiness. I had a queer sensation of being buoyed above everything and actually floating on waves of joy.

"Jim is near. Jim will soon be here."

My heart seemed to sing it. I looked from one face to another, wondering what I should find. There was nothing but tenderness in each.

"All right now, honey?" asked Virginia gently. "Or do you want to go upstairs and be by yourself for a little while?"

"Suppose we clear out," suggested Pat.

TIME FOR LADY-BIRDS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

IN addition to the flies which have wintered in the walls near the window casings, I begin [now] to see lady-birds crawling over the sun-warmed panes. Their bright little hemispherical bodies, adorned with black spots on a coral red ground are a cheering and a welcome sight. The lady-bird is one of our few freinds in the insect world, and a very efficient friend she is. She fights the plant lice (the aphids).

I kill flies on sight, but I would pat the lady-bird on the back if I could. But all that I do for her, if the air is warm outside, is to open the window and let her spread her funny, thin, white dimity wings from under her hard shell mantlet, and speed away for a sun bath.

The lady-bird has a [illegible] which is enshrined in her curious name, with its variants—"lady bug," "lady beetle," "lady fly," "lady cow," "lady hen," [illegible] beetle," "Mary's hen," "Mary beetle," "Bishop" or "Bishop Barnaby," etc. The association with the name Mary comes from folklore, attributed to this friendly insect some fanciful relationship to the Madonna. Long before entomology became a branch of scientific study, the country people everywhere had learned that the lady-bird was a valuable ally for them in the fields and gardens.

Frank E. Lutz, of the American Natural History Museum, says in his "Fieldbook of Insects," that some species of lady-birds "have the curious habit of congregating, as adults, in great masses on mountain tops to spend the Winter. Horticulturists of California collect these masses by the ton" and distribute them among the farmers, at the proper season, for controlling aphids.

When I see the aphids gathering out of their mysterious invisible hives of homopterous barbarism and my poor young plants and shrubs, including several little expatriated California mountain ashes that Luther Burbank gave me, desperately [illegible] for their life against the merciless [illegible] I devoutly wish for a ton of lady-birds to arrive like a [illegible] of rescuing soldiers on the battle ground.

THE NTH COMMANDMENT

A Film Romance From the Great Story by FANNIE HURST

Read This Story of Everyday Life on This Page Day by Day and Then Watch for It on the Screen

READ THIS FIRST

In the basement of the Mammoth Department Store Syrlag has cast a spell among the workers. Angie Spruat, who has been on the stage, and Sara Juke, in the corset department, firm friends, feel that they should be anywhere but where they are. Jimmy Fitzgibbons, the Beau Brummel of the basement, bangs the piano and sings the latest songs, and Max Plute, who admires Angie, suggests a trip to the beach. Sara, a pretty girl, longs for the country. A party is made up to go to the skating rink, where Harry and Jimmy nearly come to blows.

(The unusual story, "The Nth Commandment," by Fannie Hurst, has been created into a powerful photo play by Cosmopolitan Productions—direction of Frank Borzage, scenario by Frances Marion. It will be released as a Paramount picture.)

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

THE material conquered over all the rest and she shrugged as she started to close the door.

Not until then did Harry speak and when he did it was not such a remark as she might have expected; it was not an apology which might have brought her back—it was a command. "On your way back," said the man, "bring me a package of cigarettes, will you?"

Sara slammed the door; so that was all he cared about her—making a messenger girl of her, knowing that she hadn't a cent to blow herself with.

She almost tumbled down the narrow stairs and prayed she would never, never, see them again. She was going where she would be appreciated—to friends who knew what life was.

A half hour elapsed before she reached the address Angie had given her on a cheap street and in a cheap apartment house. But Sara had no eyes for comparisons. It all seemed palatial compared to the stuffy and odorous building she had left. And there was an elevator. That in itself seemed luxurious after the long climb to her own dingy rooms.

Finished Supper

Angie and her friends had just finished supper when she knocked at their door. Their surprise was not of the most cordial nature. It is one thing to visit an old chum and tell her she is always welcome and another thing to have her take you at your word. Sara had been literal; too literal, Max Plute thought.

Angie looked at Sara's suitcase and smiled a wry smile. "Well, girlie," she cried, embracing her for the second time that day, "where you goin'?"

Sara sank into a chair. "I'm through," she said, "I've quit."

"Atta girl," Jimmy broke in, seeing in this announcement a chance to ingratiate himself, "now you're showing sense."

"You've left Harry," echoed Angie; "well, I can't blame you; you've got a right to get something out of life, I'll say."

"How 'bout a sandwich, Max, and a glass of beer," Mr. Plute, who had been imbibing rather too freely, managed his wife to plod along scrubbing floors and washing dishes when she might be getting a good salary on the stage.

"I'll never leave you again!" cried Sara

"We'll show you what's what in this little burg."

So Sara ate the bread of friendship such as it was and wondered why she had endured living with Harry as long as she had. Everything was so different here; every one was jolly here, and they all joined in a convincing chorus of condemnation of Harry for expecting his wife to plod along scrubbing floors and washing dishes when she might be getting a good salary on the stage.

"Perhaps you can land me a place with your company," she suggested to Angie.

"Well, you see, dear, I would, but you gotta have experience—ain't that so, Max?"

"That's so," Jimmy joined in, "but don't let that bother you, Doll—you stick to me and I'll show you I'm no piker."

He winked at Angie as he said so and came over to sit beside the run-away wife. "I'll see what I can do, Doll," he assured her, taking one of her hands. "I got some pull with the managers and maybe I can get you a place in the chorus—you'll earn twice as much money as Harry, and you'll be independent—that's the great thing. Ain't I right, Angie?"

"Sure he's right, dearie, you been wastin' your time."

And as she entered into the excitement of dancing and drinking, she thought of herself as a martyr. "We'll go around in the morin'," said Jimmy, "you an' me, and I'll fix it up for you—say ain't you got a dress that'll show you off better?"

"Sure I got one to home—I didn't bring it—I was too excited —I didn't even think——"

"You better go back an' get it before it's too late," suggested Angie.

"That's the stuff," Jimmy urged. "I'll take you in a taxi—that's the sort of guy I am."

Sara under ordinary circumstances would never have entered previously negotiated to take, started for the door.

Bill Harry did not speak; he seemed an object of pity sitting there so quietly. Her departure lacked the hurry and the anger that had characterized it before.

"Good-bye," she said in a small voice.

"Good-bye," he said, almost indifferently.

She opened the door and stepped outside, still fighting something within her that urged her not to go. "Good-bye," she said again.

"I said good-bye," he answered, "but before you go would you do somethin' for me—get me a mustard plaster, my chest is like an ice box."

If he had upbraided her she would have flown forward; but this appeal to her sympathy overcame her; she dropped her bundle and with a wild cry of Harry, ran to him and knelt at his feet.

Arms Around Her

His arms were about her. Forgotten were all the harsh words and the flare of temper. He needed her; that was enough; she forgot Jimmy and Angie and the dancing and the promise of the chorus.

"You gotta forgive me, Harry," she sobbed and he stroked her hair and smiled and coughed. The little drama of married life and poverty and suffering started again on its way.

Outside Jimmy's eyes vacillated between the hallway and the clicking meter grinding out dimes and quarters. Jimmy cursed Sara and women in general and swore at himself for a fool. Cigarette after cigarette testified to his growing nervousness.

The hated basement again, but she could hardly confess that she had no money to buy a dress on which her whole future depended, and the need of what Jimmy called a snappy appearance was vital. So she smothered her pride and accepted his escort.

She was not used to riding in taxis; she had not ridden in one since the day she and Harry were married. Mr. Fitzgibbons put an enclosing arm about her shoulders and she found herself unresenting.

"How do you think you can get in without his hearin'?" asked Jimmy.

Got Her Key

"Oh, I'll get it all right—I got my key—like's not he won't be there anyhow."

"All right, only I don't want no trouble. I'll tell you what—when you get your duds an' if he ain't there—just pull down the blind an' I'll know it's all right."

Mr. Fitzgibbons had no desire to come face to face with Harry. He had not forgotten the encounter at the rink and Harry had been handicapped by roller skates; besides, at that time he was not married to Sara.

He stopped the taxi a short distance from the Smith home and, helping Sara out of the car, lit a cigarette and watched her climb the stairs to the street door. Then he waited, his eyes on the hallway.

Harry was not out, he was sitting just where she had left him in the dark; she lit the gas and went into their room. He did not turn, even when she had found the covered gown, wrapped it up and with the few remaining things she had

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Ann Adams

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

I hold a good position as secretary to an officer of a large company. My carfares a day are 40 cents, as I live at the other end of the town. My employer, goes home with me almost every night. He always pays my carfare and I have never made any attempt to pay for fear of insulting him, as he is a very wealthy man. Some of the girls in our office say that I should pay my own fare. W. F.

PERMITTING your employer to pay your carfare is a distinct breach of etiquette.

The rules of good manners and good form are never based on the consideration of a subject from the standpoint of money, but from the highest ideals of social intercourse. You are allowing a very unfortunate combination of business and social relationship.

It has occurred to you that perhaps your employer interpreted the fact that you have "made no attempt to pay" your fare as an hour's footwork, she returned quite exhausted. Two minutes' headwork would have saved her all this.

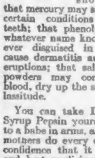

Again, a mother who knows that in that particular climate it is sure to rain and snow at some time during the Winter, kept her three children from school one day because she had neglected to purchase rubbers for them, and when I met her rushing through the blinding storm looking for a shop having the correct sizes in rubbers, she mumbled something about what a great responsibility one has who has children. She had scrimped on the headwork, and her footwork that day put her to bed for a fortnight with a serious cold.

As Spring comes to us, Housekeeper, cause a lit and consider. For your greater happiness and comfort and that of your family, can you not arrange to do just a little more headwork and much, much less footwork?

Syrup Pepsin Helps Nature Give Relief

Try it when a Laxative is needed and see the wonderful results

IT is not necessary to take a violent physic for so simple an ailment as constipation. Yet many thoughtless parents give mercury in the form of calomel, and coal-tar in the form of phenol when a natural vegetable compound like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do the work equally well and without danger: People should realize that mercury may salivate and in certain conditions loosen the teeth; that phenolphthalein, by whatever name known and however disguised in candy, may cause dermatitis and other skin eruptions; that salt waters and powders may concentrate the blood, dry up the skin and cause insitude.

You can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself or give it to a babe in arms, as thousands of mothers do every day, with the confidence that it is the safest and best medicine you can use for constipation and such complaints. A teaspoonful will relieve you over night even if the constipation has been chronic for years. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and does not cramp or gripe. Every druggist handles it, and bottles are so generous that the cost amounts to only about a cent a dose. You buy it with the understanding that if it does not do as claimed your money will be refunded. The names of all the ingredients are on the package.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that everyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it.

Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Mrs. A. Arceneaux of Orange, Tex., suffered from constipation for years and found no relief until she took Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; and Mrs. (an) Anderson of Ball, Kans., corrected her bowel trouble so that she now eats and sleeps normally. Bring a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin into your own home and let the family use it for constipation, biliousness, wind, gas, headaches, flatulency, and to break up fevers and colds.

FOOTWORK IN HOME

By Loretto C. Lynch

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Appertaining to Household Management.

DO you know the kind of a home I mean when I refer to the FOOTWORK home? It is that kind of a home where the woman who runs it does much running about upon her feet and too little headwork.

A case in point is that of a woman who never even gives her pantry a thought until an emergency arises. The death of a relative brought some unexpected relatives to her home about 10 o'clock one evening. There was no coffee in the house, no tea, no sugar—in fact, in her home that night there was not enough to halt a mouse trap.

Panic-stricken at the distress of these folks, she started out on a mad chase to find some shop that might be open, and after an hour's footwork, she returned quite exhausted. Two minutes' headwork would have saved her all this.

Again, a mother who knows that in that particular climate it is sure to rain and snow at some time during the Winter, kept her three children from school one day because she had neglected to purchase rubbers for them, and when I met her rushing through the blinding storm looking for a shop having the correct sizes in rubbers, she mumbled something about what a great responsibility one has who has children. ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a daughter who at the age of 14 married a young man aged 19 or 20 years without my consent, or that of her father. Since that time, and owing to the fact that her husband is very lazy and only works occasionally, whenever he is out of work she has been returning to us for advice and then back again to her husband. At these times she would state she did not care for her husband any more. This has been going on for three years now. A few months ago I succeeded in securing an annulment of the marriage, but in spite of this, and because of some influence he exerts over her, she has again returned to him. Now he has her living with him in the same room with another couple, and I am fearing that he may be trying to lead her into wrong ways. He is again out of work and she wishes to come back to me. What I should like to know is this, do you think I ought to take her back, or should I let her remain with this former husband of hers, in order to teach her a lesson? And what steps can I take to compel him to leave her alone if I do take her back? He is not of a fine type, but is dishonest and lazy—in fact, has quite the appearance of a rowdy.

MRS. C.

IT might be a sad lesson for you in let your daughter remain with a man whose character you have such grave doubts. But unless you can make the girl realize how she is throwing her life away on this man, you won't be doing her much service even if you take her into your home again. I think she belongs with you. And on the score of handling the man you need legal aid. Why not consult a lawyer? It is well worth your while to find the right method of protecting your daughter. Don't reproach her. Don't scold her. Just do all in your power to help her.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

By Blanche Silver.

Doris Finds a Queer Little Nest Builder.

"OH, PSHAW!" Doris exclaimed as the queer-looking thing darted through the water and sank out of sight. "Oh, dear, I wish—"

But before Doris could voice her wish Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland, hopped down on the sands before her.

"Well, of all things!" she laughed. "I was just going to wish for you. The funniest-looking thing just scooted through the water and sank down to the bottom. Now, what do you suppose it was?"

"Hard to say," answered Squeedee. "What did he look like?

They Promised to Call Again.

Did you see any wings, or fins?"

"No," replied Doris. "It looked like a big shell at first. But who ever saw a shell swim? That thing just skimmed over the water and dropped out of sight. I never saw anything like it before in all my life."

"Then if that's the case," and Squeedee's black eyes twinkled, "we'll just have to go down right now and see who it was. Do you think you'd know him if you saw him again?

Of course, Doris thought she would. So Squeedee took her hand and before she had time to blink Doris found herself standing on the bottom of the ocean.

"There he is this very second," she cried, pointing at a dear little shell opened wide and lying on the bottom of the sands.

At the sound of her voice the shell lifted itself and started off through the water, its long trailing fringe of reddish, golden color floating out behind it.

"Oh, Mrs. Lima Shell," Squeedee called. "Come on back! It's only Doris and Squeedee!"

"You folks come on down to our place," Mrs. Lima Shell called, and away she hurried through the water, Squeedee and Doris following.

"My goodness! What's this?" Doris asked, pointing to a queer little oval nest made of coral shells and sand. "Is that your nest?"

"You guessed it right this time," laughed Mrs. Lima Shell, fitting herself into her neat little bed by using her two shells like a butterfly uses his wings. "And mighty proud I am of it, too. Some folks call us the butterfly of the sea because we use our thin shells as Mr. Butterfly uses his wings. Only, of course, the butterfly can't boast of such lovely silken tresses as we have. I love to see them floating behind me when I swim."

"That's the first thing I noticed when you started through the water—those reddish brown streamers," laughed Doris. "I never would have believed you to be a shell if Squeedee hadn't come along and proved it to me."

"Some day when you have more time," Mrs. Lima Shell said kindly, "I'll show you more wonderful things than that. But, of course, you're pretty busy today."

Neither Doris nor Squeedee had said a word about being busy, but after that they bade Mrs. Lima Shell goodbye, and promised to call again some day soon.

They hurried through the water to the beach once more, just in time to hear Doris' mama calling her.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

Today Lucky If You Are CALM

THE indications today are not very favorable—in fact they are of an adverse character—and portend restlessness, carelessness, and nervousness. In view of this, it is almost superfluous to advise caution in all that you do or say, and to suggest that you exert every effort to maintain a calm and collected attitude.

Do not allow yourself to be worried by untoward incidents, and do not permit carelessness or nervousness to allow you to do or say things for which you might afterwards be sorry.

Your temperament is very changeable, and this is one of the days when this variableness will be very strongly felt. Your likes and dislikes, although very fierce at first, soon wane; your salvation, however, consists in the fact that you very quickly respond to the good in others.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

BID TO DINNER AN INSULT

By Temple Manning

WHEN hosts or hostesses in our country send out invitations they neither apologize for the entertainment which is offered nor do they boast of its possibilities. It is simply taken for granted that the person who gives the invitation will give the very best he has to the guests he is happy to entertain.

In Japan it is different. The Japanese are among the most hospitable of people, and their entertainments are elaborate.

But they have a unique way of wording their invitations.

An invitation from a Japanese lady or gentleman to a delicious dinner, in the most agreeable surroundings, where the guests will be treated with the greatest consideration and courtesy, will read as follows:

"I beg pardon for thus insulting you in begging your company at my house to dinner.

"The house is small and very dirty. Our habits are rude, and you may not get anything fit to eat, and I hope that you will condescend to be present with us at six o'clock."

Serve this delicious ginger ale cocktail

1 egg white, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons Grenadine, 1 pint PUREOXIA Ginger Ale, cracked ice. Mix egg, ice, lemon juice and Grenadine in shaker. Add cold PUREOXIA shake again. Strain.

Specialties and Oils Lead Late-Day Rally After Stocks Are Sold Off

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Well, how do you like 10 cent and 12 cent a pound sugar?

Tiffany can charge $5,000 for a ring and nobody need worry. The public don't care whether the Rolls-Royce people charge $15,000 for one of their cars. Palm Beach can charge a King's ransom for hotel accommodations without incurring any popular resentment.

But when it comes to sugar, every housewife and every bread winner in the land is affected and is, therefore, interested.

Did you notice that the British Parliament, for the first time in its long history, has been obliged to discuss a motion, proposed by a member, that the present form of government there be done away with and Socialism established?

What has that got to do with the price of sugar?

Just this: Let a few more industries arouse the indignation of the American public as this iniquitous flim-flamming in the sugar industry is arousing their indignation, and Washington will have to face, and face seriously, a similar demand.

The price you and I are now being compelled to pay for sugar is an outrage. It is not warranted by conditions. It has been engineered by conscienceless speculators.

Is this wild, unwarranted talk?

Don't answer until you have read what follows, written not by me, but by a man who has spent his whole life in the sugar refining business and who is today head of one of the large sugar companies, Claus A. Spreckles, chairman of the Federal Sugar Refining Company. Here is what I obtained yesterday from Mr. Spreckels for readers of this column.

"The sugar industry cannot justify to the consumer the present price of sugar. It can explain; it cannot excuse.

"The Department of Commerce statement on February 12, and the resulting rise in prices threaten to change the whole industry this year. The first three months of the year are usually the dullest, the canning and preserving demand not starting until later. By predicting shortages, boosting prices and encouraging a runaway market, sales of sugar are increased. The short-sighted think they are increasing the consumption of sugar, but they are not; they are merely pulling the seasonal peak forward and when they come to their season of expected high demand they will find themselves in a slump. The laws of supply and demand cannot be violated in this way.

"You can hasten distribution, but you cannot increase consumption by increasing prices.

"Speaking as a refiner and leaving aside all questions of the public good, I feel that the exhibition of the past month reflects seriously on the sugar industry and holds possibilities of grave danger in the future."

U. S. Steel Increase in Wage Report Unconfirmed

No confirmation was obtainable of the widely-circulated report that United States Steel is to advance wages April 1. Those who should know admit, however, that the subject of a pay raise will be discussed when Judge Gary returns from his Mediterranean trip the middle of next month.

If steel independents advance wages the Corporation may be forced to follow. But in the past the independents have always waited for the big company to take the initiative.

MARKING UP OF CALL MONEY AIDS BEARS

Specialties and oils led a late-day rally on the New York Exchange after most issues had been shaded or thrown back for more material losses at intervals of preceding trading.

New highs for the year were made by Barnsdall A, Keystone Tire, Granby, Marland Oil, Union Bag & Paper and Owens Bottle, the last named up more than 3 points on the news, announced last week to readers of the Boston American, that a stock dividend and increase in regular dividends were impending in this issue.

Money renewed at 5¼. Marking up of the call money rate to 6 per cent. and apprehension of a possible early increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate caused extensive selling after midday, in which few stocks escaped losses of a point or more. Bosch Magneto dropped 4½, South Porto Rico Sugar 3⅜, Mount Sugar 2, Stromberg 3⅛ and Kresge [illegible].

A considerable number of the active shares were quoted 2 or more points under Thursday's final figures during the setback.

California Petroleum hit its previous 1923 high. Public utilities moved ahead under the lead of Consolidated Gas, which spurted to 67⅞, against Thursday's low of 65½, reflecting belief that the $1 gas bill would be killed when it came before the Assembly.

Exceptional strength of Marland Oil Company issues on announcement that the company had contracted for the sale of $35,000,000 worth of crude oil to the Standard Oil of New Jersey featured trading in bonds. The 7½s and 8s, each advancing a point, while the 7½s with warrants and the 8s, with warrants were up 6 and 5 points, respectively.

Foreign government obligations continued irregular. U. S. government bonds were irregular and dull.

Moody Sees End This Year in Business Revival

"THE present business revival has a fair chance of winding up before the year is over," John Moody, noted American financial authority, says in an interview.

Moody explained, saying that while indications pointed toward a period of stagnation in the next year or eighteen months, should the foreign situation improve, the overseas revival might aid in carrying American business through the expected depression.

"Failure of business interests to carry deflation to its proper level resulted in prosperity starting from a higher level of costs than it should have and, when the building boom commenced, materials were high," he said.

"Speculation is noticeable in construction and new real estate and, because of the high cost of building, the present boom is fairly certain to slow up."

United Soda Fountain Company

7%

Cumulative Participating First Preferred Stock

First Preferred participates equally with Common Stock in all dividends (cash or stock) in excess of $7.00 per share.

'Select' because:

a. The adoption of the [illegible] amendment greatly increased the consumption of [illegible] prohibition becomes more effective this increase will become more marked.

b. Serving luncheons at soda fountains is a new business. Already a huge industry, its growth is phenomenal. It requires added footage in counters and increased fixtures.

c. Chain stores, like United Candy, S. S. Kresge, etc., find the soda fountain and luncheonette an increasingly important source of revenue. "Schrafft's" have five "United" installation in Boston and 11 in New York and more going in.

d. While the company has captured 80 per cent. of the trade in the territory in which it operates it does but 1 per cent. of the soda fountain business in the United States. There is ample room for growth. This is a good stock to put in your strong box.

Building Boom in Danger

Railroads Fail in This Case and as They Did With Coal and With Food During War

The secretary of the Massachusetts Building Trades Employers' Association, Mr. John F. Walsh, reports that unless the embargo on building materials is lifted immediately, the building boom in this community will be blighted and killed.

Why have the railroads put an embargo on building materials? They are heavy, indestructible, and can come by slow freight. Conditions, therefore, are favorable for handling this freight, if any can be favorably handled. Why have the railroads been unable to meet the demands of our community for coal?

They have failed just as they failed in the war to meet the demands of our armies for food. They failed through mismanagement, through the failure to maintain their equipment in a state of efficiency. They failed to act harmoniously; they failed to appreciate their duty to the public; they failed to understand the obligation of a public service corporation clothed with some of the attributes and powers of sovereignty itself.

When they received back the railroads they immediately tried to contract the repairs of their locomotives and cars to private repair companies, in which their officers were largely interested, at extortionate prices which the riders and the business men who ship freight on these railroads and the people who buy what is shipped on the railroads, (and nearly everything they do buy is shipped) have to pay.

When they were halted by the public revelation of this graft, they then started to deflate labor by an arbitrary reduction in the wages of the shopmen who repair the railroad equipment. They precipitated a strike and in order to beat down their workmen, they have allowed their equipment to go from bad to worse until it is now, according to the report of the United States Senate Committee, from 50 per cent. to nearly 90 per cent. inefficient.

The country is trying to do its business, just as Russia is trying to do business, with crippled railroads; but Russia's railroads were ruined by the German and Austrian shot and shell and by the shot and shell of the French and English after the war was over, and by dynamite and cavalry raids, and by the wear and tear of the military use of these railroads in a country which has few factories in which to repair its equipment.

Our railroads have gone to the dogs and the junk heap because we have had no EFFICIENT RAILROAD MANAGEMENT, BECAUSE PRIVATE MANAGEMENT IS ILLOGICAL AND DOOMED, IN THE NATURE OF THINGS, TO FAIL.

How did we save the war? Our railroads, under private management, had utterly failed to deliver the grain with which to feed the armies to the ships which were waiting in the harbors. There was alarm in the capitals of Italy, France and England, and the prime ministers of those countries instructed their ambassadors at Washington to communicate to our government the fact that on account of the failure of our railroads, UNDER PRIVATE MANAGEMENT, to make the deliveries of grain which we had undertaken to deliver, the Italian army had suffered two cuts in their rations, and that the French army had suffered one, and that another cut could not be made in the rations of either army without revolt.

There was nothing for our government to do but seize the railroads and operate them. This they did, and within six weeks, BY GOVERNMENT OPERATION, victory was matched from defeat.

How can we save our awakening prosperity? By doing exactly what we did in the war—taking the railroads and operating them, and this time doing it permanently. All the great civilized countries of the world, except England, own their own railroads. Railroads are not so important to England as to other countries—a little island full of good harbors. Even our little northern neighbor, Canada, is operating her own railroads, the longest railroad in the world except the Russian-Siberian railroad.

We make this criticism of private management without intending to criticise individuals. We have the highest opinion of the integrity and ability of President Hustis of the Boston & Maine and President Pearson of the New Haven. The trouble is that they are simply attempting to do the impossible. You cannot run a railroad for the speculative bankers and for the public interests at the same time. You must represent one or the other, and under private operation you can only represent the speculative bankers.

The business men of the community suffer more than anyone else, because they not only suffer the increased cost of living which bad railroad management helps to cause, but they suffer, as in the case of these builders, in the course of their ordinary business. Yet they are borrowers of money and they are controlled and silenced by the bankers, so that we must get public ownership and operation, we suppose, without their assistance and even in spite of their opposition. There are few men less free in some directions than the American business man.

An alleged "piece of news" about 1924 may interest you. The "news" says the Democratic national ticket is to be Underwood and Al Smith.

Underwood, seasoned Southern Democrat, is expected to hold the great Democratic South together. And Al Smith, who carried New York State a little while ago by a gigantic majority, is counted on to work wonders in the North, particularly in New York and Massachusetts. Such a ticket would have interesting possibilities in several ways. But it is early for prophecy.

SHIPS LIONS EAST BY THE CARLOAD

LIBBY, Mont., March 23—Bakker of this city, who claims the title of world's greatest lion hunter and catcher, expects to ship five lions in carload lots in the future. He has orders for more than 100 lions, most of them for the Home Zoological Arena of Kansas City. He plans, among other things, to put a crew of lion hunters into the woods of Montana, Idaho and Washington, making Libby the shipping point for animals they capture.

Bakker's plan is to fit his ranch to accommodate a large number of lions and, when a carload is assembled, send the animals to the customers.

Mayor On Evacuation Day

Editor Boston American:

I suppose I am but one of the many thousands who read Mayor Curley's speech at the so-called Evacuation Day breakfast at the Copley-Plaza. It was a fine speech, and no doubt it was delivered in an eloquent manner. Like many others, I saw in it a wonderful tribute to the Irish race, deservedly so, and appropriate.

But, according to my understanding, it was Evacuation Day that was being celebrated. Perhaps someone can tell me why the Mayor made absolutely no reference, as far as I can find out, to Evacuation Day. His flowery oratory failed to bring into the ears of his listeners any word of the significance of Evacuation Day. No one who heard or read the speech would know that the day was dedicated to those heroes of Washington's who sent the British hordes out of Boston.

I am not a citizen of the United States. I will be one soon, I hope. I have studied American history as much as limited time will allow. And I always read "patriotic" addresses in hope of acquiring further knowledge of this land to which I have come. It was, therefore, decidedly disappointing to me to read an Evacuation Day speech that talked of everything but Evacuation Day.

Expecting Third Baby

Editor Helping Hand:

I don't know whether the Helping Hand extends further than Massachusetts or not, but have seen how you have helped so many others. I thought I would ask, too. I have a Waltham woman's wrist watch that needs repairing, but I cannot afford to have it done. Perhaps some girl or woman who wants one but cannot afford a new one could have this put into running order. I would gladly give it to someone who would like it. N. B. R.

THE LAMB TURNS ON THE ARGONAUTS AND SHEARS 'EM

By Herbert Kaufman

CLARENCE SAUNDERS, a golden fleeced lamb from Tennessee, recently wandered into Wall Street—and sheared its Jasons.

If rumor is correct, the gentleman turned the tables on the bears and took two million dollars out of their hides in two days.

At nineteen, Saunders was earning four dollars a month. At forty-two he controls a chain of twelve hundred grocery stores. Folks who do such things must have brains. Accident doesn't build so high. Which should have warned "the wise men of Gotham" to walk more warily.

They gambled in his stocks. It never pays to play the other fellow's game.

Old Baldy Begins to Ruffle Up

Mussolini is playing a dangerous game, too. Ambassador Caetani acknowledges that his government is directly concerned in the organization of local Fascisti groups.

We are not inclined to interfere with racial societies, but when foreign powers, through alien blocs, plan to share in the management of the United States, Old Baldy begins to cock a stern eye at the proceedings.

We invite all Italians in good standing to join the family circle, but they can't have two homelands. Dual loyalty is disloyalty to one or the other. The other is ours. Bigamous citizenship's a working impossibility. Naturalization is a monogamous process and requires complete divorce from prior allegiance.

Latin Influences to Control Elections

The Fascisti oath demands unswerving obedience to the central body, which advises members to take papers and increase their influence in local politics, suggesting that the advantages which Italy shall thereby derive may be easily imagined.

"Be Italians even if you have to serve another government." A message directed to 5,000,000 of our inhabitants.

A Wilkesbarre editor urges his readers to uphold Italian candidates and visit summary punishment on all foreigners who talk and act against Italy.

A hymn now being widely circulated in Mulberry street celebrates the efficiency of dagger and bomb.

One organ of the society denounces the Anglo-Saxon spirit of this republic and looks to the day when Latin influence will be strong enough to dominate elections.

Hands Off the Stars and Stripes!

In Waterbury, Ct., Black Shirts compelled the chief of police to dismiss a meeting, under the Civil Liberties Union, because speakers intended to criticize the movement.

Constitutional rights cancelled and freedom of speech regulated by foreigners and hyphenates!

The priceless heritage of lawful assembly a matter to be determined by European Politics!

Since when was this a Roman colony?

A certain young Premier, hitherto much admired and greatly respected hereabouts, would do well to remember Rienzi, another commoner and dictator, who also turned giddy on the power and fell back to oblivion.

Hands off the Stars and Stripes! Forty-eight States with no intention of relinquishing sovereignty to alien determination warn him and outsiders generally to cease building Trojan horses in America.

Folks Who Don't Assimilate

Between 1905-13, eight million immigrants, mostly of Slav and Mediterranean origin, poured through New York.

Harry R. Landis, Assistant Commissioner of Immigration, estimates that 85 per cent. of these folks are not of assimilable type. Their ideals, beliefs and conceptions of political freedom utterly differ from our own. A plausible statement. Present Black Shirt activities lend weight to his judgment.

New York spent one-eighth of the State budget last year on the care of strangers. It cost $5,000,000 to house and attend alien insane.

Forty-six per cent. of the inmates of Ward's Island are imported responsibilities.

Dumping Ground for Old World Diseases

Steamship companies, interested only in the profits of the traffic, jam the steerage with half inspected passengers and turn the United States into a dumping ground for Old World diseases.

Landis is for still further restrictions. He complains of the niggardly budget under which his bureau operates and calls for enough doctors at quarantine to protect the national health. He wonders how Washington expects to guard the Mexican border with one man watching 500 miles of boundary.

Thirty-five thousand Chinese are in Cuba ready at the first chance to slip through. The Chinese, at least, do mind their own business when they get here.

The Secret Ear of the Air

Young John Hays Hammond has found the secret ear of the air. Radio won't babble government confidences from now on.

We boards will issue further instructions from desk to field and fleet without fear of eavesdropping. A wireless code system at last. One of a thousand improvements to follow.

John Hays Hammond, Senior, chairman of the Federal Coal Commission, has not, however, announced a system to overcome fuel shortages and profiteering. He's up in the air, too.

Here's a prescription which hasn't failed in nearly ninety years: Eat moderately, sleep seven hours in a well-ventilated room, exercise regularly and be reserved in all pleasures. Dr. Eliot, keen and vigorous on his eighty-ninth birthday, thus discloses one fountain of youth.

Sinbad Resents His Burden

Phillip Snowden, who protests that capitalism is in its dotage, indicates that eighty per cent. of Britain's wealth is owned by about two per cent. of the people. Discontent breeds fast on such figures.

Snowden thinks that the Empire would be happier under Socialism.

With 1,500,000 men unable to find work, with great landed estates still intact and masses playing Sinbad for a long line of titled jockeys, something radical is likely to happen over there.

Ganna Walska, en route to Europe, confesses the abandonment of her American concert plans. Judging by the leading opinions on her golden voice, something like that was sure to happen, too.
